

RALPH McGILLThe Problems
Of Churches

"Billy Graham," said the minister across the luncheon table, "was ordered by his doctor to cut the length of his sermons in the Australian revival by about a third. The results," he continued, "might amuse you. He found the sermons were the most effective he ever delivered. I have not," sighed the minister, "had the will to discuss this with my deacons."

Billy Graham's preaching successes have by no means been failures in end results as some claim. New York surveys indicate, for example, that the post-revival fault lay chiefly with the churches. Several thousand persons who had indicated, on counseling cards, their choice of a church to attend, never heard from them.

Last year, for the first time, increased church membership did not quite match, percentage-wise, the population growth. This is significant—and causes considerable worry.

There is, without question, a great increase in interest in religion. But none seems able to analyze it. There are signs it is an interest in religion, but not always in being religiously active. Another question the churches of America would like answered is how much of this interest is dictated by the desire for conformity.

Suburbs

One of the features of our day is the expansion of suburbs. In the new residential suburbs it is noted if one does not attend church. The children want to go because their neighbors do. In the city, confined to huge apartment houses, there was no neighborly comparison. How much of the suburban interest is the conformity of neighborhood?

America is changing. The great population concentrations are producing pressures of great intensity. There are no answers for all the new problems growing out of the many changes. But what already is obvious is that the tremendous weight already felt by the schools and all public services is to be even heavier on the churches of America.

The average congregation has little conception of the loads already carried by usually small clerical staffs. The most valuable service the clergyman can perform in building a friendly, enthusiastic "family" at his church, for example, is to make calls. It is human nature to want to be noticed, to feel that one has status.

But today the average congregation is growing at a tremendous rate. Calls take a great deal of time. And the average minister of the average congregation finds to his dismay he hasn't the time.

Crowded Cities

What the usual congregation doesn't know is that today's crowded cities are producing an almost constant supply of daily callers on the priests and pastors for advice and help. Few churches have a trained counselor. Yet, to all of them come troubled persons who need help about an alcoholic son, daughter, wife or husband. They come about children in trouble. They need to know what the minister thinks about divorce from a drunk-soldier wife or husband—or a brutal one. They who say they are lonely and unwanted. It may not be that more persons today are neurotic and troubled. But it is true that there are a great many more people—and a corresponding increase in neurotics.

No qualities of a seer are needed to know that in the years ahead this one service of the churches of America will be perhaps their most important. Crowded cities multiply loneliness. Churches cannot fail to meet the needs of the troubled persons who turn to them.

Nor is any vision required to see that trained members of the clergy will be needed full-time with the young people of the church. It can hardly be said that the problems of delinquency, or of troubled, "mixed-up," "shook-up" youngsters is wholly that of the church. But few would argue this is a field in which the church must participate to the full extent of its ability.

So, while we worry about the congestion of our highways and streets, and rue the fact we did not plan years ago, and while we are concerned with the crowded schools and lack of teachers, let none overlook the effect on the churches of America!

SCHOOL'S OUT!—Elementary pupils of Kittredge School, along with more than 40,000 fellow DeKalb students, rushed into the wide-open spaces of vacationland Wednesday. Fulton and Clayton schools also turned out Wednesday. Atlanta schools shut down Tuesday. Decatur's bell comes Thursday.

FARMVILLE, Va. (AP)—Prince Edward County supervisors Wednesday formally approved, "with profound regret," a county budget stripped of all appropriations for the operation of public schools in 1959-60.

The six-man board, which had voted Tuesday to abandon public education as its ultimate weapon against court-ordered integration, said it was not acting "in defiance of any law or of any court."

It added in a statement following its decision to publish a budget of only $210,654. "Above all we do not act with hostility toward the Negro people of Prince Edward County."

The supervisors expressed the hope that "we may in due time resume the operation of public schools" upon a "basis acceptable to all the people of the county."

The budget as adopted compares with a 1958-59 budget of about $940,000 which included funds for school operation.

The county school board, whose request for funds for 1959-60 school operations had been rejected Tuesday by the supervisors, confessed it "cannot for lack of funds continue the education of the children of this county."

ALL-OUT FIGHT
The National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People promised an all-out legal fight to prevent the supervisors from closing down the three high schools and 18 elementary schools in Prince Edward, which serve 1,779 Negro and 1,562 white students.

But a legislative leader for the segregationists predicted the county's action will be duplicated in many other localities of heavily Negro-populated southern Virginia "if integration is forced by the courts."

Gov. J. Lindsay Almond Jr. commented that what the supervisors had done "is in conformity with Virginia's law," and said those who objected "have only to

Gov. Ellington Gets Holiday—A Bit Late

NASHVILLE (AP)—Gov. Buford Ellington was surprised at the lack of activity when he arrived at the Capitol Wednesday morning.

"Where is everybody?" he asked his driver.

"Why this is a state holiday, sir," he was told.

"That's how I learned this was Confederate Memorial Day," Ellington told newsmen later.

Tennessee and Kentucky observe Confederate Memorial Day on June 3.

Senate Votes
Full Georgia
Farm Funds

WASHINGTON—All of the money earmarked for Georgia farm projects was approved Wednesday as the Senate passed a $3.9 billion agricultural appropriations bill for fiscal 1960. The vote was 74-10.

Georgia funds, inserted in the Senate bill by Sen. Russell with committee amendments, include $808,000 for a new corn insect laboratory at Tifton; an increase of $383,200 in funds for the soil and water research laboratory at Watkinsville; $100,000 for coastal bermuda hay research at Tifton; and $25,000 to begin apple-breeding research at Blairsville.

These additions in the Senate bill must be approved by the House, however, before they are finally enacted into law.

The Senate bill also included $1,893,000 for cotton boll weevil research throughout the south; $10,500,000 for poultry inspection; $450,000,000 for the soil bank conservation reserve; and $250,000,000 for the agricultural reservation program. All except the latter item represent increases over the House bill which must be agreed to by the House.

Passage of the bill came after Sen. John Stennis (D-Miss) abandoned a fight to soften a $30,000

Tech Men Ramble
At Wreck Scene

By KEELER MCCARTNEY

Howling Georgia Tech students wrecked a police investigation of a wreck near the campus Wednesday night.

Two policemen were set afoot. "They ganged around the police car and started rocking it," Patrolman J. C. Ward said. "It looked for a while like they meant to toss our car over a bank onto the Expressway."

MOVED SPORTS CAR

Earlier the students had picked up a sports car occupied by four girls, moved it across the street, turned it around and set it down, girls and all.

Ward and Patrolman M. H. Medert said the sports car and other vehicles in the crash were investigating had been rearranged so that they were unable to make heads or tails of the wreck.

While they were trying to figure out what happened, the officers said:

Someone stole the ignition keys from the police car.

Someone let the air out of the tires on the police car.

Someone lifted the cap off the gas tank on the police car.

REPORT "INCOMPLETE"

Although their official report was labeled "incomplete," here's what officers said they believed happened:

Clifford C. Blalock, 18, identified as a Tech student from Cleveland, Ga., was driving south on Williams street, near North avenue, in a "hot-rod" which consisted of a 1929 Ford body powered with a 1959 sports car engine.

Blalock struck the rear of a small sports car driven by Miss Marilyn Bohs, 18, of 803 Talcott Cir., Marietta, glanced off and struck two cars parked at the curb.

Officers responding to the accident call, Ward and Medert said, they saw 500 students milling about the parked cars.

"When they saw us they let

Army Wins
Over AF in House Vote

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House sided with the Army Wednesday in the Pentagon missile controversy as it voted $38,848,339,000 to run the Defense Department in the next fiscal year.

The House went along with the recommendation of its appropriations committee in sharply cutting money for the Air Force B-60 anti-aircraft missile and boosting funds for the Army's Nike-Hercules missile.

178-51 VOTE

But it refused to cut out all funds for B-60 procurement, rejecting by standing vote of 178-51 a move to disallow even the 200 million dollars recommended by the committee.

It also turned down attempts to force the administration to maintain an Army of at least 900,000 men instead of the 870,000 programmed by the President and approved by the committee. An amendment by Rep. Daniel J. Flood (D-Pa.) to increase Army strength failed by standing vote of 131-43.

Flood abandoned plans to try to increase the strength of the Marine Corps from 175,000 to 200,000.

House passage sent the bill to the Senate.

$260 MILLION

No effort was made to restore to the bill the 260 million dollars for construction of a new conventional-powered aircraft carrier for the Navy. The committee had rejected the request.

NO CHANGES

The House made no changes in any of the scores of money allotments recommended by the Appropriations Committee, which had made an over-all cut of $399,861,000 under Eisenhower's budget requests.

The three members who voted against passage of the bill were Reps. Randall S. Harmon of Indiana, Byron L. Johnson of Colorado and William H. Meyer of Vermont—all Democrats.

West Big 3 Offer

For Berlin DealIke Warns
Reds Anew
On Summit

By MERRIMAN SMITH

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower demanded Wednesday that Russia show signs of easing East-West tensions—including a guarantee of Western rights in Berlin—if it wants to meet him at a summer summit conference.

Denouncing recent threats by Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, he said no head of a self-respecting government "can go to an international conference in response to any kind of thing that can be interpreted as a threat."

LACK OF PROGRESS

He warned that the slow-moving foreign ministers conference at Geneva had made no "detectable progress" so far that would warrant holding a later summit meeting between himself, Khrushchev and other government chiefs.

The President sounded the warning in a news conference at which he also vigorously defended Commerce Secretary nominee Lewis L. Strauss in his Senate confirmation battle, criticized mine union boss John L. Lewis and spoke out warmly for the U.S. working-man.

He said he was "disturbed" by an increasing tendency in this country to adopt a Marxist theory which holds there must be bitter warfare "between the man that works and the man that hires him." He called this "absolutely and completely un-American."

Appealing for labor-management cooperation—and passage of labor reform legislation to protect working men—he said that "every last workman, down to the lowliest" is just as important as the manager or "capitalist" who invests in a firm.

REJECTS CHARGE

He rejected as "completely untrue" a charge by Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, that he was basically against the United Steelworkers Union in the deadlocked steel wage negotiations. Eisenhower said his interest in big business men was "very, very little" compared to his interest in the working classes.

The President praised Strauss

HAVANA (AP)—Cuba's Communist party is taking a decisive beating in nationwide union elections here.

The Communists won most of the posts in only a few of the approximately 3,000 unions that make up the Confederation of Cuban Workers.

Indiana Expands
Psychiatric Clinics

By JACK NELSON

A successful program of community psychiatric clinics, such as the Schaefer committee recommended for Georgia, is being expanded in Indiana.

Aided by a new law which allows several counties to jointly operate the state-supported clinics, Indiana has set a goal of one clinic for each 50,000 population.

On this basis, and considering projected population figures, Indiana should have 88 such clinics by 1970, according to the state's mental health planning commission.

Indiana now has 14 such clinics. The communities in which the clinics are located bear 50 per cent or more of the operating cost of the clinic, and the state fur-

Gromyko
On Access

By DREW MIDDLETON

GENEVA—The three Western powers are ready to freeze troop strengths in West Berlin in their effort to reach an interim agreement with the Soviet Union that would perpetuate and codify free access to the city, it was indicated here Wednesday.

At a restricted session of the foreign ministers' conference Wednesday afternoon, the three Western ministers for the first time had a serious discussion with Andrei A. Gromyko on access to the city, authoritative Western sources said.

FREE ACCESS

The ministers insisted, the sources continued, that free access apply to West Germans as well as the American, British and French garrisons in the city. The Soviet Union's ability to apply economic pressure on West Berlin without "identifiable hostile action" is a chief preoccupation of the West in the talks.

Although Gromyko was induced to talk for the first time about Western rights of access, the restricted session was said not to have produced substantive progress. Gromyko held to his arguments for a "free city," but the West did get some indication of what he considers a basis for negotiation on Berlin.

NO SUMMIT BASE

Neither the United States nor the British consider that, on the basis of discussions so far, including the one in Wednesday's restricted session, there is sufficient progress to justify a summit conference. The British are slightly more optimistic than the Americans, but the difference between the two delegations on this score is not nearly so wide as it was a week ago.

There appears to be no sign yet

Crime Here Continues
Falling Off

Crime continued to drop during May in Atlanta in five of the eight major categories, records revealed Wednesday.

Police Chief Herbert Jenkins said he accepted the report as proof that the crime wave here had been broken. He said, however, he still was not completely satisfied with the crime picture.

A report prepared by the crime reporting division showed there were fewer murders in Atlanta last month, 34 fewer cases of aggravated assault, one less residential burglary, nine fewer business burglaries.

Compared with the same month last year, there were an equal number of rapes, one more robbery, 10 more larcenies and 12 more automobiles stolen.

Comparison figures for the first five months of the year:

	1958	1959
Murder	36	27
Rape	30	38
Robberies	204	183
Assault	236	222
House burglary	523	624
Store burglary	1188	1073

Steel Unionists
Summon Board

NEW YORK (AP)—Steel union officers have summoned the union's 33-member executive board to a meeting Thursday to talk over stalemated wage contract negotiations.

The call to the board came Wednesday as negotiations passed the halfway point in time. They began May 5 and the present contract expires June 30.

4 Space Mice Feared Dead
After Satellite Misses Orbit

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—Four mice rocketed into space Wednesday but the Air Force said it believed their satellite, Discoverer III, failed to achieve an orbit.

This would mean the mice had plunged to their deaths.

Officials had hoped to eject the mice over the Pacific Thursday and catch them as they parachuted. They would have been the first creatures to return alive from orbit.

The Air Force tracked the missile-carrying would-be satellite for 13 minutes after it was launched, at 1:00 p.m. (PDT). Then all radio signals ceased.

Based on information presently available, it is believed that the Discoverer did not achieve an orbit," the Ballistic Missile Division said.

A spokesman said many hours of study of the radio transmissions would be required to determine where the Discoverer re-entered the earth's atmosphere.

He said that if, as believed, the missile failed to orbit it would presumably have burned up upon re-entering the atmosphere.

He added that it was considered highly unlikely that the missile could have escaped into space because of speed factors.

The missile was last heard from by a telemetering ship 1,200 miles south of the launch site. The spokesman said there have been no reports of sightings from the South Pole, where the last north-south orbiting satellite was spotted consistently with naked eye.

The Air Force spokesman, asked if the telemetry showed whether the mice passengers survived the launch, said he had no information on that and was not sure the initial radio signals would have shown the animals' reactions.

The rocket itself, including the Thor booster and the second stage, performed satisfactorily, the Air Force said. It said 46 intermediate-range Thor missiles have been launched to date, and the last 14 have fired successfully.

Ecuador Orders Martial Law After 8 Die in All-Night Riots

By MORRIS W. ROSENBERG

Associated Press Staff Writer
A night of rioting that took eight lives brought martial law to another Latin-American country Wednesday. This time it was Ecuador.

University students, aided by civilians, fought police in Ecuador's major port city, Guayaquil, for six hours Tuesday night. Army tanks and armored cars halted the bloody battle that left eight dead and over 100 wounded. President Camilo Ponce declared martial law "to save the republic from anarchy and foreign communist aggression."

The fight started when Guayaquil police tried to break up student demonstrations protesting the death of two students killed in an uprising at the Port Viejo garrison last Friday. Six were killed and 25 wounded there when civilians helped draftees battle regular army forces.

Nicaragua, still fighting rebel forces flown into the country from Costa Rica, appealed for help Wednesday. President Luis Somoza's regime asked the Organization of American States to investigate reports that three schooners filled with men and arms had sailed from Cuba to aid the revolutionaries in Nicaragua.

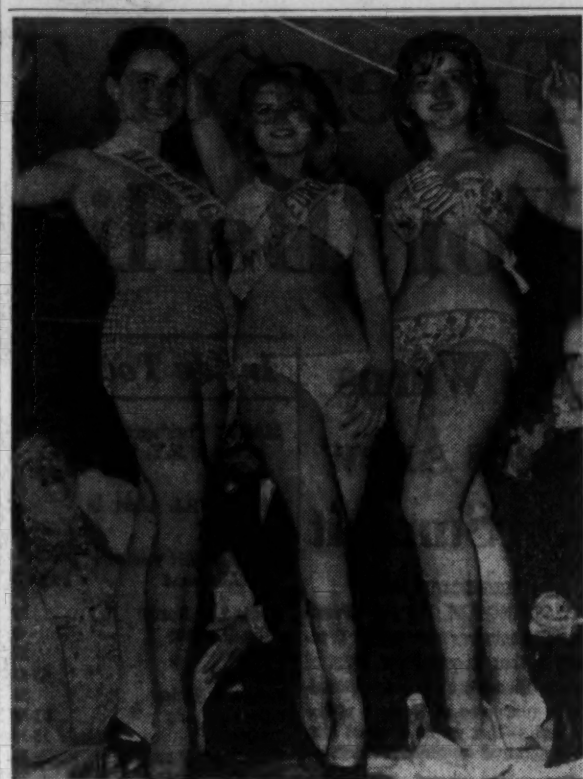

Cuba objected to the appeal, saying there had been no foreign invasion of Nicaragua. The OAS Council postponed its decision until Thursday.

Censorship held back news of the fighting inside Nicaragua. Nicaraguan exiles in neighboring Costa Rica said fresh Nicaraguan forces had joined the insurgent movement. They said the rebels were consolidating their positions.

The government denied rebel claims. It said fighting was confined to two small areas where planes had flown in rebel groups Sunday and Monday.

A government communique Wednesday night reported the first casualties of the revolution: Eight rebels and three National Guardsmen were killed. The student riots in Ecuador once again emphasized the dynamic role of students in Latin-American political life.

Hear! Hear! M'Lords Find Too Much Tripe on TV

LONDON (AP)—The peers of the realm took a look at British TV Wednesday night and decided too much nonsense is filling the tiny screen.

They used such descriptive terms as tedious, demoralizing, trivial and silly.

Neither the state-financed British Broadcasting Corp. nor the independent TV authority emerged from the House of Lords' debate with a clean bill.

"The other night," said Lord Boothby, "I turned on the BBC and there was a young man wiggling a'out behind the microphone singing a song called 'I Love You.'"

"I stood this for a little time and decided to switch to the other people. I found there was a blonde wiggling about behind a microphone singing precisely the same song."

"I didn't want to be loved by either of them so I had no option but to switch off altogether."

Boothby, a considerable TV performer himself, said both networks were using "far too much canned American stuff bought on the cheap."

Lord James of Rusholme weighed in: "A world is being presented in which glittering prizes are to be won every night by negligible knowledge and less effort."

House Panel Extends Wartime Excise Taxes

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House Ways and Means Committee gave swift approval Wednesday to a bill to continue for another year present high wartime tax rates on cigarettes, liquor, automobiles and corporations.

Only three members of the 25-man committee voted against the measure, which must clear Congress by June 30 to forestall a scheduled $2 billion annual revenue loss. That would wreck President Eisenhower's hope for a balanced budget.

The bill would continue until June 30, 1960, the present 10 per cent federal excise tax on new cars and the 8 per cent tax on auto parts and accessories. The rates were scheduled to drop to 7 per cent and 5 per cent respectively.

The measure also would forestall tax reductions of a penny a pack on cigarettes, $1.50 a gallon on liquor and $1 a barrel on wine. The federal tax rates now are eight cents a pack on cigarettes, $10.50 a gallon on liquor and $9 a barrel on beer.

The legislation also would continue the present 52 per cent tax rate on corporations, preventing an automatic drop to 47 per cent.

The present tax rates were imposed during the Korean war to help finance the fighting. The war ended in 1953 but Congress never has seen its way clear to let them drop back to peacetime levels.

Opposed to the bill in committee were Reps. Noah M. Mason (R-Ill.), James B. Utt (R-Calif.) and Thaddeus M. Machrowitz (D-Mich.), who represents a major auto center.

Fired Texan Kills Boss And Self

Wounds Another As Scores Look On

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—An engineer who had just been fired by the Trunkline Gas Co. Wednesday shot to death his former department head, wounded another executive and then killed himself as a score or more employees looked on.

The gunman was identified by police as Robert L. Roberson, 37.

Shot to death was Lee Edwards, 63, chief of the firm's mapping section.

Charles R. Lockard, 38, chief draftsman, was wounded in the head. His condition was described at a hospital as not serious.

Police Capt. Weldon Waycott said Roberson was discharged this morning. At 11:50 a.m., Waycott said, the engineer returned with a pistol. Stopping just inside a door, he fired at Edwards, killing him instantly.

Roberson then turned the gun on Lockard and, apparently satisfied he had killed him too, placed the barrel of his .38-caliber snub-nosed revolver in his mouth and shot himself.

Outlook at Geneva Isn't Too Promising

The outlook at Geneva is not good. It has worsened with the Russian insistence that the Allies quit West Berlin and that the city be made a free zone under the direction of neutral troops. But if small contingents of U.S., British and French troops remain in West Berlin, they want Soviet troops admitted also.

They would not, of course, grant the right of entry of Allied troops to East Berlin. And their plan would mean the not-so-slow swallowing of the city through Soviet infiltration.

President Eisenhower has moved in with a strong, calm statement. He has said with truth that he sees no reason yet to hold a summit meeting. Unless the Russians are willing to make firm commitments about Western rights in Berlin, there will be no such meeting.

The President carefully kept the door fully open. But he let it be known that he is in command of the talks going on in Geneva and that our representatives there will carry out his instructions.

Nothing much was expected from Geneva except some sort of arrangement for a summit meeting. This may yet emerge. The Russians assuredly knew we would not accept their offer as we knew they would refuse ours. Once all the propaganda has been wrung out of the sessions, it may then be possible to find mutual grounds for a summit meeting.

Meanwhile, Khrushchev rattles his rockets against Italy and Greece and is working mightily to wrest control of the Eastern Mediterranean through them and Arab countries in the Middle East. Thus far he has not been successful as his overtures and threats are rejected.

One reason the West must stand firm in Berlin, of course, is that it has become a test of just how much confidence other free nations can place in Allied commitments. To surrender to Russian demands there would weaken disastrously the entire Western position.

The world needs a summit conference if it is to be a sincere search for peace. But as Andrei Gromyko once said, "Governments are never sincere." Still we can hope.

DeKalb Launches Move Toward City Services

DeKalb County gradually will inaugurate municipal-type traffic enforcement during the next few weeks. As the fastest-growing county in Georgia, the action was inevitable.

DeKalb is now an urban county. It grows more so. Its traffic ills are great and becoming greater. Enforcement of those regulations have been negligible and the number of accidents and fatalities has been increasing steadily.

There is still confusion about how the courts will function in enforcing the new ordinances. It is important that some uniform system in accord with tested practices be worked out. Atlanta for years has worked at it and only recently has something approximating a satisfactory solution been worked out.

DeKalb has had to face up to the many problems occasioned by growth. It remains to be seen whether a county government can successfully operate municipal services and how authority of incorporated areas can be accommodated in a countywide municipal government.

At any rate, DeKalb County, as part of the metropolitan urban area, has similar problems as the rest of it. "Urban sprawl" is a reality with which the whole must cope.

Recent Events Brighten United Appeal Prospect

Atlanta's forthcoming United Appeal will be a test in fund drive cooperation. The combined drive will give those who have complained about "too many campaigns" a chance to prove a joint effort is better.

Because we want to see the United Appeal successful, we welcome those developments which strengthen the cause.

One such development is the announcement that the DeKalb County Red Cross chapter will join the Atlanta chapter in the united campaign.

Another is the statement of the case at the National Red Cross convention in Washington by James E. Mathis, chairman of the Hall County Red Cross and of the Community Chest there.

Mr. Mathis pointed out that the Red Cross can contribute to bringing order out of chaos in fund raising, by working with other agencies. He emphasized that Red Cross will retain its identity and continue to achieve its vital mission.

Hesitancy of many veteran Red Cross leaders to change from the March campaign is understandable. After all, they've been in the field that month for a long time.

But these are changing times, when old questions call for new answers.

We agree with James Mathis of Gainesville and with our own Atlanta Red Cross leaders that its services can best be rendered as a separate agency but which gets its funds in the one big drive of the year.

Residents of Greater Atlanta can help prove that they and we are right.

Russell Again Saves Conservation Program

While other aspects of the federal farm program keep the nation in quandary, that part of it pertaining to soil and water conservation is so important to the future that no sensible person reasonably can oppose it.

This country has been more wasteful of its resources than any in history. Conservation of its soil and water will determine the living standards of its people for all time. The water problem already is acute and there are fewer acres of land per capita with each passing year.

The American people again can thank Sen. Russell of Georgia for beating back attempts to curtail the conservation program drastically next year. This has been an annual battle for him and he again has won a victory for generations to come.

As for the rest of the farm program, it apparently will remain about the same. Secretary Benson's policies find Congress still hostile. His administration of congressional programs, many of its members say, is costing unnecessary billions and aims at destroying the price support program.

Continuation of the present price support program, President Eisenhower charges, is leading wheat farmers one step nearer disaster. Incentives for growing more wheat, he says, means farmers will continue to grow crops for storage rather than for markets. "It benefits especially the large corporate farms."

There is one thing for certain. Neither Congress nor Secretary Benson has come up with a program which will sustain a healthy agriculture while preventing the piling up of billions of dollars of surplus crops in the nation's warehouses. The 1959 farm bill is more of the same.

All Alumni Should Heed Emory's Call for Support

Alumni more and more are being asked to come to the aid of their hard-pressed alma maters in this day when operating costs and enrollments are still on the rise. It is a day, too, when the demand for higher education directly is related to needs of a growing economy and complex urban society.

The added demands are not restricted to state-supported institutions but to private colleges and universities as well. These latter have contributed much to the basic strength of America and must continue to do so.

During June Emory University Alumni Society will conduct a drive among alumni to raise at least $200,000 in individual contributions. Last year 4,443 graduates contributed $166,000 toward the school's endowment funds, costs of operating and scholarships. This represented a small fraction of the total of 20,000 alumni.

We sincerely hope that all Emory graduates will respond this year. The needs are great and can be met by a private institution only through support of alumni and the business community. Emory is a great university and needs all possible support to maintain its present position and to grow in service.

Commencement Brings New Traffic Challenge

If 113,000 persons were to become unemployed in Atlanta in a single day, the city would note the added congestion on the sidewalks and streets.

It happened in Atlanta this week. That one greatest single employer of people, the educational plant, shut down and turned loose 113,000 young people.

They are not, however, unemployed. Some of them go to paying jobs.

The others, even the kindergarten set, are busybodies.

Sometimes, going about their diverse and interesting activities, they will get out into the street.

A community which loves its children doesn't want them hurt.

So drive with extra care as you leave home for work downtown or as you turn into your street at the end of the day.

We can forgive them if they get a little careless. We cannot forgive ourselves if we do them needless harm.

Georgian Says That There Are Two Sides To Those Stories About 'Land-Gouging'

Ellenwood—There is an article in the May 29, 1959, paper entitled "Property Owners Hit for Road Gouging." This is a timely article and you are to be commended for constantly reminding the public of such acts. There are two sides to each story, however, and both should be told.

I own a small tract of land in DeKalb County which I am trying to subdivide and develop. The County Planning Commission, acting on behalf of the State Highway Department, has refused to issue building permits since a part of my land might possibly be needed for the proposed perimeter highway. I visited the State Highway Department in July, 1958, to learn if they could tell me when this part of the highway would be built. I was told that the routing of this section of the perimeter highway was indefinite and that they might not even require my land. I recognize the need for a perimeter highway but do not understand why it must be routed through most of DeKalb's newest residential development. Also I do not understand why I have been denied building permits for the past two years when no more than an aerial survey existed for this roadway.

Since DeKalb County cannot issue the building permits and the right of way has not been purchased, I feel that I am being denied the use of my property.

Alcohol Is To Blame For Mental Illness?

Atlanta—Groucho Marx stated on TV that one-half of all hospital beds presently are occupied by mental patients. Our Atlanta Assn. for Mental Health is appealing for funds to meet vitally needed services.

Some reputable authorities report today that alcohol accounts for the great increase in mental illness. Should not the public have more information on such a vital national problem?

Little Shavers Still Are Keen

Of all things: A salesman went into the Stonewall Jackson Restaurant in Summerville, W. Va., the other day and asked to speak to Mrs. Jackson. . . . In case you missed it, an Oregon congressman referring to rising resentment against Franco, put into the Congressional Record a statement: "The Reign in Spain Is Mostly on The Wane." A new truck engine being introduced in France is said to run on "crude oil, whale oil, vegetable oil, kerosene, cooking oil or even brilliantine hair dressing." And, one hopes, a dash of Chanel No. 5. . . . The Army is about to develop a satellite carrying a camera which will scan the entire earth. But they'll never get a good picture. Someone is bound to move.

NO PRIVACY: Joe Parham, Macon News editor, says, "Methods of raising youngsters have changed. You don't take children to the woods and punish them with a razor strap, as happened to me more times than I like to think about."

How can you, Joseph? There is no woodshed any more and the carport is so public!

Razor straps are mighty scarce around the house, too. You can't raise a chick with a Schick.

Yet today the little shavers are sharper than ever.

Beware of Calling Any Person 'Fool'

Henry Ward Beecher, one of America's great preachers of the 19th century, identified himself with many social and moral problems of his day. As a result he received many anonymous-poison pen-letters. One day a letter came which contained only one word, "Fool."

Dr. Beecher commented that he had received many letters which bore no name but that this was the first time he got a letter with a name only!

Most of us do not use the word "fool" when referring to another person. That word is a label we just avoid. Perhaps our thoughts are guided by the injunction of Jesus that "Whoever says, 'You fool' shall be liable to the hell of fire" (Matthew 5:22).

"Fool" means many things, such as a dupe, simpleton or an object of ridicule. I think Jesus did not want His friends and followers to use language which would broaden the breach between men. Anything was wrong that blocked understanding among men. Anything was evil that corrupted human relationships.

To call a man a fool certainly does not reflect an attitude of affection or endearment. Most of us hate to be called fools, even though our behavior warrants such a description. I've seen men flare up at the mere suggestion of the word fool. It was surely that way in Jesus' day, too.

Furthermore, I think Jesus must have been thinking of deeper implications involved in the use of the word "fool" than mere name-calling. "Sticks and stones may break my bones, but names will never hurt me." I don't think any man was greatly damaged by being called by an insulting name. When the Americans back in Revolutionary times were called "Yankees" by the Redcoats, they didn't much mind. The Americans took a fancy to the name and even sang with good spirits the song "Yankee Doodle," which surely in any literal sense was representative of derision.

Jesus must have known that the name "fool" wouldn't hurt a person so called, but He was mightily concerned about the person who would use such a name. To call a man by such a name indicates much more about the person who has allowed the name to corrupt his vocabulary—and personality.

A proud man isolates and insulates himself from men whom he considers to be inferior or unfortunate. Christ taught us that all men are brothers. Even if we don't believe this, we know Christ did. Among brothers there should be no sense of superiority.

Next time the word "fool" slips thoughtlessly from your lips, I wish that you may consider what's gone wrong in you that has caused you to feel so much better or superior.

Pentagon Rivalry Breaks Out Again

WASHINGTON—All is not well in the Pentagon. The most lacerating interservice controversies again are pouring over into the headlines. There is the Army-Air Force controversy over the Nike-versus-Bomarc anti-bomber, anti-missile missile. There is the Pentagon-Congress controversy over whether the Defense Department or the politicians shall decide which of these weapons will better do the job.

There is the Navy-Air Force controversy over the Polaris-firing submarine which, because it delivers a 1,500-mile missile, the Air Force yearns to take over.

Army Secretary Brucker is in the doghouse—somebody's doghouse. Army Chief of Staff Gen. Maxwell Taylor is in the doghouse—as Gen. Matthew Ridgway was before him. And Chief of Naval Operations Adm. Arleigh Burke may well be in the doghouse when the full facts of the abandoned $441,000,000 program to get an operational long-range jet naval bomber, the Seamaster, come out.

But these controversies are the effects, not the cause, of this sorry spectacle.

The cause is the continuing, bitter, damaging and disgraceful struggle to be first—the struggle for priority and dominance—among the Army, Air Force and Navy.

Three times since the end of World War II the military and civilian setup of the armed forces has been reorganized. Each time it was going to end wasteful rivalry. Last year President Eisenhower sent to Congress a new Pentagon reorganization program which he declared would end the need for reorganization, stop interservice bickering.

It hasn't.

There is more disunity and strife among the Joint Chiefs of Staff today than ever before.

There is more interservice bickering and me-first rivalry than ever before.

And when the Joint Chiefs of Staff do not make firm, joint decisions on competing weapons and competing roles of the services, they invite Congress to make them—and this is the last place where military decisions should be made.

As a matter of fact, my information is that the real reason the President has recalled Adm. Radford to the Pentagon is to try to end this dangerous sequence of split positions.

What do we mean when we talk about interservice bickering? This is a struggle of each service to be the principal arm of the nation's defense. Its size, power and prestige are determined by the size of its own budget.

This is why the Army, Navy and Air Force separately rush into competition with each other for development of the same kind of weapon, why each hoards its scientific information.

What's wrong? Either the system is wrong or we are just the victims of an unfortunate collection of perverse military chiefs. This latter conclusion I reject totally and I believe every informed correspondent would do the same. They are the prisoners of service pressures they cannot, under the present setup, successfully resist—as have been their predecessors.

What is clear at this stage is that the defense reorganization which the administration put through Congress last year is not yet equal to the problem and that if separate, competing commands of the three services cannot remove the extremes of interservice jealousy and strife, then further steps are imperative.

Little Girl's Prayer Goes to the Heart

A slender man in shirt sleeves and gray work pants came by the office the other morning. He was a little embarrassed, he said, to be bothering anybody on the paper. But he was just sitting there at home the other night when he noticed that his small daughter Linda, 11 years old, was laboriously writing something down in pencil on a rough sheet of paper.

He asked her what she was writing and she showed it to him and he read it and it kind of touched him.

It was the night before the last day of school, he said, when, he guessed, all the children in Atlanta were just like he used to be before the last day of school—so happy about school being over for three long months that they could hardly sleep.

But Linda had taken a little different view of the end of a school year and she had written down her thoughts and feelings in a prayer.

She titled it "A Prayer of Thanks" and it went this way:

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

It should not go unnoticed that Premier Fidel Castro has reopened Havana University, which had been closed these last two and a half years.

We can give Cuba's strange new leader a good, solid score on this.

"Thanks, God, for everything. Thanks for taking care of us this year.

And as we part tomorrow, I am sure it will be a great sorrow.

Take care of everyone and see that they have fun. I'll miss this school.

And I'll miss my friends and teachers.

So, God, you see now what a great little this school means to me.

God bless us every one, and keep us safe until we meet again next year."

There are nobler sounding prayers in the prayerbooks. And on Sunday from the pulpits many preachers will pray long and earnestly and with eloquence for God's mercy and His grace.

But I'll bet that before the throne of heaven no supplication will ring more sincerely in the ear of God than the simple thanksgiving of Miss Linda Richards, age 11, of the Blair Village, Hapeville, School.

Macon 'Groom' Held in N. Y. Bank Robbery

A Georgia "bridegroom," who says he is still single, was accused Wednesday of holding up a Hyde Park, N.Y., bank and making off with $4,515.

Douglas Day, 37, of Macon, the unmarried bridegroom, told officers of the New York State Police that his wife, Clara, 35, didn't have anything to do with the holdup.

Day also said Clara was not really his wife. She was bamboozled, he said, in a phony ceremony in a motel near Jacksonville, Fla.

Day, who had been married previously, told Trooper Emmett F. Donohue that a buddy impersonated a minister. After the ceremony, Day rented a car in Jacksonville, paid for it with a bad check, and drove north, police said.

Day's wife, who has a 19-year-old daughter by a previous marriage, thought he was an FBI agent.

When he pulled up in front of the Farmers and Manufacturers National Bank in Hyde Park, she waited in the car while he went inside to withdraw money from his account. He was supposed to have told her his account had been transferred from a Southern bank.

What he did, police said, was enter the bank and thrust a paper bag at a woman teller, taking out his pistol and announcing: "This is a stickup. Fill 'er up, I mean business."

The teller stuffed the money, in small bills, into the bag. The gunman fled.

Police said a revolver and a rifle were found in Day's motel room. The motel is located about 16 miles from the bank and on the same road.

Day and Clara were arrested there six hours after the holdup. A special deputy sheriff had glanced into the motel parking lot and spotted the getaway car. Trooper Donohue said the pair was surprised with the loot when police entered.

FBI Grabs Escapee Reading a Paper

Escape artist George Vincent, 37, Wednesday was grabbed by FBI agents as he sat on a parking lot bench beside a heavily traveled street during the afternoon rush hour.

Vincent—listed in the top 10 most wanted criminals by Atlanta police—and four others saved their way out of the Decatur County prison branch at Bainbridge two weeks ago.

The other four were recaptured soon after the break.

FBI agents spotted the lanky Vincent sitting on a bench in a parking lot on Boulevard, SE, between Decatur street and Memorial drive. They said he was reading a newspaper and did not see them as they walked up.

GAVE A FALSE NAME

The escapee gave a false name at first, but later admitted his identity, the FBI said.

Vincent, object of an intense police search since the prison break two weeks ago, said the Bainbridge break was his 22nd from prison during a 25-year crime career.

Charles E. Weeks, special agent in charge of the Atlanta FBI office, said Vincent was picked up on a federal warrant charging unlawful flight from Georgia to avoid confinement.

Vincent was arraigned before U.S. Commissioner Frank Holden. The federal charge was dropped because of the lack of evidence to show that the escapee had actually left the state, Weeks said. He added Vincent was lodged in Fulton Tower to be turned over to the Georgia Board of Corrections.

CONVICTED HERE IN 1952

Police identification records show Vincent would have been eligible for parole consideration in 1981. His record dating back to the mid-1930's, shows convictions for auto larceny, robbery and burglary.

Arrested here in 1952, Vincent was convicted in an extensive robbery and auto larceny wave and was sentenced to serve from 32 to 64 years in prison.

A native of Gwinnett County, he once worked as an electric welder.

Baby at Play Attacked by Dog

A 17-month-old girl Wednesday suffered facial injuries when attacked by a dog while she was playing in a neighbor's yard, police said.

Tina Louise Mable, of 1404 Lanvale Dr., SW, was treated by a private physician. Patrolmen H. H. Russell and S. F. Wiggins said the mother, Mrs. Walter Mable, told them the child was attacked while playing in the yard of a home nearby. Patrolmen said they verified that the dog had been inoculated against rabies.

51 Communist Spies Surrender in Korea

SEOUL, Korea (UPI) — A total of 51 Communist spies and collaborators surrendered during the month-long amnesty period ending May 30, National Police Headquarters said Wednesday.

The amnesty was ordered to check a growing Communist espionage campaign here. More than 1,400 spies have been arrested during the past five years.

Hiram Man Vanishes at Allatoona

Searching parties Wednesday were trying to find a Hiram man who went for a swim in Lake Allatoona after stopping at the roadside.

Buddy Norton, 43, of a Douglasville highway address near Hiram in Paulding County, entered the lake about 1 p.m. and told friends he was going to swim across the lake, Cobb County deputies Jesse Cooper and Hugh Fore said.

BEHIND TREE

Deputies said a friend of Norton, Tom Mitchell of Austell, told them Norton had started climbing the bank on the opposite shore near a tree which stood well out in the water. He stepped behind the tree and disappeared.

Mitchell told the officers that a group of people had come down the bank just about the time that Norton went behind the tree, and since Norton was nude, he and the others thought he was just hiding.

SUMMON AUTHORITIES

After about 30 minutes the group became concerned, and finally called authorities about 4 p.m.

A search by L. R. Irving, assistant reservoir manager, forest rangers, Cobb County and Acworth civil defense rescue squads and deputies indicated that Norton had not come up on the opposite beach.

Mitchell, and Joe Ivey and Charles Allen, both of Dallas, told the officers that Norton was a good swimmer.

Norton is a farmer and is unmarried.

Howell Smith Runs for House

Howell E. Smith Jr. of Atlanta announced Wednesday he will be a candidate to represent the Fifth District in the U.S. House of Representatives in the 1960 Democratic primary.

Smith said in his announcement, before the fellowship association of St. Mark's Methodist Church, that the issues of states' rights and segregation should be considered separately on their own merits and freedom of speech preserved. Smith, a former Methodist pastor, is the manager of a concession business and free lance writer. He ran fifth in a field of five during the 1958 race for lieutenant governor, with 30,000 votes.

*National Association for Stock Car Advancement and Research

6. BEST TRADE-IN

Go ahead—check the figures in any official N.A.D.A.* Guide Book. You'll find that Chevrolet used car prices last year averaged up to $128 higher than comparable models of the "other two."

7. BEST STYLE

POPULAR SCIENCE magazine says Chevy is unmistakably modern in every line this way: "... in its price class the Chevy establishes a new high in daring styling..."

2. BEST ECONOMY

No doubt about this: two Chevrolet Sixes won their class in this year's Mobilgas Economy Run, getting the best mileage of any full-size car. Official figure: 22.38 miles from a gallon of gas. That's the kind of engineering that keeps your gasoline costs way down.

3. BEST RIDE

You don't really need an expert's opinion on this one—you'll be able to tell yourself, instantly. But MOTOR TREND magazine expresses it this way: "... the smoothest, most quiet, softest riding car in its price class."

4. BEST ENGINE

Every motor magazine has given Chevy's standard and Corvette V8's unstinted praise. As SPORTS CARS ILLUSTRATED puts it: "Indeed, this device is surely the most wonderfully responsive engine available today at any price." And there are eight of these vigorous powerplants to pick from—the widest range in Chevy's field.

5. BEST ROOM

Official dimensions reported to A.M.A.* make this clear. For example, Chevrolet's front seat hip room is up to 5.9 inches wider than in comparable cars. And Chevy even offers more front seat head room than all but one of the high-priced cars!

*Automobile Manufacturers Association

Papers Ordered Into Court by Pye

Atlanta Newspapers, Inc., was ordered Wednesday to show why it should not be held in contempt for publishing material in The Constitution and The Journal about a defendant which was not part of the trial testimony.

Here's Text Of Order by Judge Pye

Judge Durwood T. Pye Wednesday cited Atlanta Newspapers, Inc. on contempt of court charges in connection with news articles published by The Atlanta Journal and The Atlanta Constitution concerning the Jim Meriwether robbery case.

The contempt order was read in open court some two hours after Judge Pye declared the Meriwether trial a mistrial.

The text of the order signed by Judge Pye follows:

"1. The case of The State vs. James Pyles, Walter Dovie Turner, alias 'Buck', and Harold James Meriwether, Clerk's No. 77153, in which said defendants were charged in Count 1 with the crime of robbery from the person of Herman Mitchell, and charged in Count 2 with the crime of robbery from the person of C. T. Meyers, each of said charges being a capital offense, commenced against Harold James Meriwether alone and separately in said court before a jury on June 2, 1959, and by consent of counsel for The State and counsel for Harold James Meriwether the jury were permitted to be dispersed to go to their homes at the conclusion of the business of the court on June 2, 1959, with instructions to return to the jury room on the following morning of June 3, 1959, the court recessing in the late afternoon of June 2, 1959, until 9:30 on the morning of June 3, 1959.

"2. 3 Die in Traffic; Car Falls, Kills Thomaston Boy

Three persons were killed in Georgia traffic Wednesday and a Thomaston youth lost his life when the car under which he was working fell on him.

Bob Wolford, 45, Negro, of Shiloh was killed late Wednesday when his truck was hit by a train at a crossing near Hamilton.

Clayton E. Butler Jr., 13, of Baxley was killed in a collision on U.S. 341 south of Baxley.

James Roscoe Brown Jr., 21, University of Georgia student from Twin City, was found near his wrecked car seven miles west of Athens early Wednesday.

Freddy Merridith, 20, of Thomaston received fatal injuries when a car fell on him. Witnesses said he was helping remove the transmission from the car when it slipped off two bumper jacks.

Although the formal celebration of Mother's Day is only a little more than 50 years old, the origin of the event can be traced to ancient times. Each year, the Romans honored the mother-goddess Hilaria, while the early Greeks worshipped Cybele, mother of the gods.

Judge Durwood T. Pye of Fulton Superior Court signed an order requiring the show cause at 9:30 a.m. Friday before him after he had declared a mistrial in the robbery trial of Harold James Meriwether.

After the judge signed the mistrial order and issued the contempt rule, state and defense attorneys immediately began selecting another jury to re-try the case.

When all panels of available jurors were exhausted about 3 p.m., Judge Pye ordered the county's jury box brought in and began drawing jurors who were to be subpoenaed Wednesday night to appear in court Thursday morning.

In the mistrial order, Judge Pye charged Atlanta Newspapers, Inc., published stories containing material "calculated to prevent said defendant from obtaining a fair trial and due process of law."

The order cited that some of the jurors read the stories which appeared in two editions of the Atlanta Journal on Tuesday and in two editions of The Atlanta Constitution on Wednesday morning.

Judge Pye set out in the mistrial order that defense attorney Frank Hester "brought to the attention of the court the publication by Atlanta Newspapers, Inc., of material concerning the case and the defendant on trial."

As the trial opened Wednesday morning, Judge Pye pointed out to the defense attorney that two news stories had appeared which "could influence" the thinking of jurors. He asked Hester what he wanted to do about it.

Hester, who said he did not want to waive any of his client's rights, asked for a poll of the jury. Six jurors said they had read one or both of the stories, three said they had not read either of them, and the others said they only read the headlines.

Hester then moved for a mistrial and Judge Pye granted it.

The judge cited an 1893 decision of the Georgia Supreme Court in which it was held that newspapers may only "report what has already taken place in the courtroom."

Judge Pye said in the contempt rule that each publication of the said articles (four publications are cited) "is here charged as an offense."

Prisoner Flees Gang at Thomaston

THOMASTON (AP)—A young convict, Charles J. McElwaney, slipped into the trees and escaped from a prison work gang on a Flynt River bridge project Wednesday, authorities said.

A spokesman at the Macon County prison branch at Montezuma said bloodhounds "were running him" but had not tracked him down late Wednesday.

Sheriff E. T. Bray of Upson County investigated the break-in at a nearby cabin and the theft of some clothing. Prison authorities said that if the 21-year-old escapee had managed to get rid of his uniform and obtain a suit of clothes, "they probably won't catch him."

McElwaney was serving a 4- to 5-year sentence for automobile theft in Fulton County, prison officials said. He was sentenced Feb. 3.

State Bids on Beds, Equipment Are Questioned by Bowdoin

A possible violation of the state's new honesty in government law has been turned over to the law department by Purchasing Supervisor W. R. Bowdoin.

Bowdoin wrote Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook's office asking an opinion on bids received on beds and kitchen equipment, particularly if the bids constituted collusion on the part of the bidders.

Attached were bids for the kitchen equipment all bearing the same price — $740 — even though some were from Maryland and Cincinnati, and for 36 beds, all at $2,808. Most of the bids on beds were from the Atlanta area and Birmingham, Ala.

Bowdoin said freight rates should have caused some difference in price if nothing else did. Bowdoin told the attorney general's office the situation raises a question of application of the honesty bill enacted by the 1959 General Assembly.

"I would like very much for your department to give us a ruling as to what disposition should be made for bids made in such a fashion and if this constitutes collusion on the part of the vendors to the detriment of the taxpayers' interest," his letter said.

New York City's bus and subway systems cover more than 770 miles.

State Voted Uncut Fund For Farms

Senate Approves

limit on price support loans to any one farm or farmer.

The Senate bill now goes back to the House.

The House had adopted a differing $50,000 limitation.

It is expected that Dixie cotton interests will try to modify the Senate loan limit provision in a conference with House members.

At his news conference Wednesday morning, President Eisenhower gave his approval to a limit on the amount of money lent to individuals and farm companies but indicated he preferred a lower ceiling than $50,000.

The 10 senators voting against the measure are Republicans. Fifty-two Democrats were joined by 22 Republicans in voting for the bill.

Just before passage Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill.) lost on a parliamentary ruling an effort to prevent any price supports unless production controls are in operation.

Douglas shouted that Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson was trying "to wreck the farm program" by offering price supports on corn and other crops without controls.

West Offers Berlin Deal To Gromyko that the conference will achieve the "clear commitment that Western rights and privileges will not be impeded in West Berlin" which President Eisenhower called for in Washington Wednesday.

The four foreign ministers agreed to meet again Thursday afternoon in restricted session at the Villa of Maurice Couve de Murville, French foreign minister. Wednesday's meeting took place in the lakeside villa of Secretary of State Christian A. Herter.

The Western objective in the restricted sessions has been to elicit from Gromyko what price he places upon an agreement which will guarantee rights of access until reunification of Germany and which will codify those rights against violation by either the Soviet Union or the East Germans.

Authoritative sources said at this afternoon's talks the Soviet foreign minister was induced to explain in detail the Soviet position. His explanations dealt with the Soviet view on freedom of access from West Germany to the Allied garrisons and to the civilian population of West Berlin.

The last point is of greatest importance to the Western powers. They do not fear Soviet or East German action against their own lines of communication to the Berlin garrisons. They do fear hidden pressure in the form of delays on import and export licenses and bureaucratic interference with barge and railroad traffic.

Such interference, even if it affected only 20 per cent of the West Berlin economy, would have serious effects in the British view.

21 Schools To Close In Virginia

thank the NAACP and the courts which do its bidding."

It was only four days ago in Farmville, in a speech to graduates of Longwood College, that Almond declared Virginia would not abolish its public schools but would fight to preserve them. The governor said then that to abolish public education would be to "surrender to those whose purpose it is to destroy us" and would lead to federal control of public schools.

There was no answer Wednesday to the question of what the county would do with the school buildings which, if the supervisors' action is carried to a conclusion, would be empty next fall.

The fund cutoff and subsequent school closure would leave 75 white school teachers and 67 Negro teachers out of jobs. The Prince Edward School Foundation, which proposes to operate private schools for white children, said it hoped to employ virtually all the white teachers. But there appeared no chance of similar private school work for the Negro teachers.

The NAACP, whose desegregation suit against Prince Edward was one of five suits which resulted in the Supreme Court desegregation decision of 1954, has taken the attitude that planning for private schools for Negroes might weaken its case in the fight for integration.

as a man with the highest type character and ability. Asked whether he thought anti-Semitism was a factor in opposition to Strauss, he said if such an issue was raised it would be "very, very sad," indeed tragic.

The news conference produced these other major developments:

—The President said no decision had been reached on asking Congress to permit an increase in the interest rate on long-term government securities. But he said it was obvious the government had to do something to avoid financing too much of the 288-billion dollar public debt with short-term securities.

—In the dispute over final Air Force and Army anti-aircraft missiles, he is standing on defense plans he sent Congress early this year pending completion of a new study of the missile program by Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy.

—The President said he was disturbed over the six-year failure of the Republican Party to win control of Congress and score nationwide victories even when it sweeps the presidency. He said plans to attack the problem would be announced soon.

STAY SOUTH, YOUNG MAN!

WHERE WERE YOUR DREAMS for the future, on your glorious day of Graduation? Were they up in the clouds where they belong, because horizons are as limitless as the skies today for young men of character and competence, vision and faith?

Hold those dreams high, young man, and stay South to see them come true. For right here at home, in the South you know and live in and love, a great new opportunity-land is coming of age, where dreams that are born on the wings of a star can come down to earth and grow into reality.

A recent U. S. Department of Commerce report shows that since World War II the economic development of the South has out-paced the national rate of growth in almost every category you can name. Along Southern Railway lines alone, in the seven-year period 1952 to 1959, there have been 2,421 major industrial developments representing an investment of almost $4 billion.

Look ahead—stay South, young man. Stay South and grow with America's "youngster" opportunity-land.

Psychiatric Clinics Spread in Indiana

tal patients who have no homes still faces Georgia. And so far no plans have been advanced to meet the problem.

VITAL ROLE RECOGNIZED

The Indiana planning commission, recommending expansion of the community psychiatric clinic program, declared:

"Care and treatment for mental and emotional disorders given by trained personnel within a community is both effective and desirable. Community psychiatric clinics are playing a vital role in the state's mental health program.

"This local service helps retain large numbers of mentally and emotionally disturbed people in their own home and on the job.

"This service also helps to cut down on admissions to state psychiatric institutions since about 10 per cent of the patients they treat would otherwise require hospitalization."

A LAW FOR GEORGIA?

Indiana's law permitting joint ventures by counties in the operation of local clinics might well be needed in Georgia, a state of many small counties, if local clinics are to be developed in this state.

In recommending enactment of the law, the Indiana planning commission pointed out that some counties needed and wanted clinics but were unable to establish them "because of their sparse population and inability to raise adequate funds."

The Indiana law limits the amount of county funds for purposes of the clinic "to the amount which could be collected from the annual levy of a five-cent tax on each $100 valuation of taxable property."

For Georgia, the Schaefer committee recommended that a State Department of Mental Health be responsible for the state's entire mental health program, including "the development and maintaining of community psychiatric clinics throughout the state."

Patrolmen said the students cheered and howled and pointed out the wrong persons as drivers of the respective cars. They added Miss Roha and the other three occupants of her car were so frightened that they could not give coherent accounts of the wreck.

The officers made no case. They said they eventually succeeded in having the damaged vehicles removed and cleared the streets.

Shut-School Bill Stalled In Florida

By United Press International
TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI)—The House turned down two drastic segregation measures Wednesday, and a determined Senate minority staved off a vote on a "last resort" school closing bill.

Sen. Doyle Carlton of Wauchula led an all-out drive to delay action on the school shutdown bill which was defeated on Tuesday and then revived.

Carlton and 13 fellow senators prevented the vote necessary to put the bill on third reading for final passage. This needed 26 votes. It can be passed by three-fifths or 23 votes on Thursday when it will automatically be on third reading.

The motion to waive the rules and put the bill in position for an immediate vote was rejected 24-14 after senators warned it would give the NAACP a vehicle to strike down all Florida's segregation laws.

The proposal, which would go on the ballot in November, 1960, would authorize the voters of any county to close down any school to avoid integration. It also would authorize the state to help finance private schools.

Tifton Voters Approve Gas 1,061 to 236

TIFTON (AP)—Voters Wednesday decided overwhelmingly to set up a city-owned and operated natural gas system.

There were 1,061 votes in favor of issuing revenue certificates for the system and 236 votes against.

The issue had been favored by city officials and the Tift County Chamber of Commerce. The firms which now distribute low-pressure gas in Tifton made a vigorous fight against the issue, which involves $350,000 in certificates to be paid off over 20 years with revenue from the gas system.

money would come from the general federal Treasury rather than the highway trust fund.

The interstate system is being financed by 90 per cent federal money. President Eisenhower, however, has already warned that a gasoline tax increase will be necessary to complete the program.

Rep. Iris Blitch of Homerville, a member of the Public Works Committee, said she voted against the bill because New York would get more than 18 per cent of the total reimbursement funds, whereas Georgia would get less than 1 per cent.

New York would receive by far the largest amount—$799,100,000 for money spent on 568 miles of toll and free highways. Nevada would get the least amount—$700,000.

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP)—A $20,000 diamond pin, lost about three weeks ago in a plush New York night club by Mrs. Muriel Reynolds, was returned to the Sapele Island socialite Wednesday by police.

Mrs. Reynolds, the wife of tobacco heir Richard Reynolds, did not miss the pin until her return to Georgia. An employee of the El Morocco found the leaf-shaped pin and turned it over to detectives. Mrs. Reynolds claimed the pin Wednesday at the office of the police property clerk.

Eastman Husband, 60, Kills Wife and Himself

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Lee, both about 60, were found shot to death in the bedroom of their home at Eastman Wednesday.

A coroner's jury ruled that Lee shot and killed his wife and then fatally shot himself.

Dodge County Sheriff Lewis Mullis said no motive for the shooting was learned.

Coroner Lawton Giddens said Herbert Moore of Eastman, a brother of the dead woman, found the bodies when he went to the home for a visit.

Water Aid Sought

Towns County citizens, looking at their scared land this week after one of the worst floods in the county's history, are preparing to go to Washington for federal water control aid. Flood water from the recent series of flash rains ripped six-foot ditches through many sections of valuable bottom lands. Some were two to five inches deep in sand, and silt was piled high enough in spots to cover fence posts. One official estimated damage in the Brantown Creek and Hiwassee River valleys at $300,000.

School Merger

Consolidation of White County's two high schools apparently isn't any nearer than it was at this time last year, despite dissatisfaction of some parents. The county school board has given students in the Nacoochee High School area permission to attend White County High School at Cleveland. Supt. Herbert Glover said 66 students are doing this. But parents in the Nacoochee, Robertstown and Helen districts complain that they are having to pay transportation costs out of their own pockets. A decision by the county school board to consolidate the schools has been overruled by the State Board of Education, Glover said.

Worried by 'Munitions Lobby,' Ike Says

By JACK RAYMOND

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower expressed concern Wednesday over the influence on the defense program of what a questioner called the "munitions lobby."

The President affirmed at his news conference that he had discussed the problem privately with some senators. He said he may have used the term "munitions lobby" but did not believe he did.

He made it clear nevertheless that he believed political and financial influences rather than military considerations alone were playing an unwarranted part in the defense debate.

President Eisenhower's concern with the defense contracting lobbyists recalled past probes. In 1934 Sen. Gerald P. Nye, Republican of North Dakota, headed a sensational inquiry into the munitions industry here and abroad.

And President Truman, as a senator from Missouri, became prominent as chairman of a special committee that served as a watchdog on military spending in World War II.

During the President's news conference, it appeared that he was worried about pressure that might be brought upon congressmen. He also noted the advertising of private companies about their weapons.

When he was asked about his remarks to senators about munitions lobby influences, he replied:

"Well, I don't know who has a right to carry outside the White House any remarks I have been making, and to make those remarks public property. That is supposed to be a little bit of a private place over there, although maybe not always."

At the Pentagon, officials indicated that the President was disturbed by conflicting sectional interests upon Congress. With abandonment of acceptance of certain types of weapons, substantial industrial employment was involved, officials said.

On the other hand, it was emphasized that most of the leading congressmen, particularly the veterans in the various committees, had a clear record of acting on principle. A high official cited several legislators privately by name to show they had favored programs that did not coincide with narrow sectional interests.

But one recent proposal has upset many Defense Department authorities. This is a proposed amendment to the military construction bill that would require Congress to authorize individual missile and aircraft expenditures, even after the appropriations for these weapons were passed.

This may leave Congress open to additional non-military influences, it was said. Just as the Pentagon has had its problems deciding between weapons, Congress has lately shown it is subject to similar differences, one source noted.

Noted composer Cole Porter studied law in his first year at Harvard. He quickly switched to Harvard School of Music.

'Fishing Parson,' 62, Is Given 10 Years on Charge by Girl, 14

SKOWHEGAN, Maine (AP) — Maine's "fishing parson" was sentenced to prison for 10 to 20 years Wednesday for statutory rape of a 14-year-old girl who said he fathered her baby.

The Rev. Arthur R. MacDougall, 62, of Bingham, appealed Superior Court Justice Leonard F. Williams' refusal to give him a new trial. The judge held up execution of the sentence and released the minister in $15,000 bail.

The Rev. MacDougall, married and father of four children, has been pastor since 1923 at Bingham Congregational church where he annually held a special service for anglers. An ardent fisherman, he has written more than 200 published short stories, most of them about fishing.

Seven women and five men deliberated seven hours before convicting the clergyman Tuesday night.

The Steel Industry Is Fighting For Money

*Profits before taxes as reported by U. S. Steel

What Is True of U. S. Steel Is True of the Entire Steel Industry

When our union thinks of prosperity, we think in terms of People; Happiness in the home; security on the job; a decent standard of living.

When the Steel Industry thinks of prosperity, they think only in terms of Money and Profits.

Steel corporations are producing more steel than ever before. Profits are breaking all records. Yet, despite this production boom and profit spree, tens of thousands of Steelworkers are still unemployed, or working only part-time.

There is a good chance that many of these unemployed may never be called back to work because technological advances in the Industry have eliminated their jobs.

These unemployed can't be ignored. Neither can those who will lose their jobs in the future because of further technological advances.

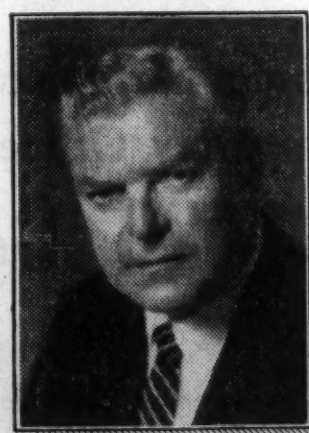

Our union has made several proposals to the Steel Industry to help solve this problem. Among them is a redistribution of working hours so that more people can be employed.

The United Steelworkers of America is not opposed to automation. We have always favored taking the burden from men's backs and putting it on machines. But we are opposed to automatically wrecking our economy with push-button production without making the necessary provision to maintain human purchasing power to buy the products of industry.

We ask the people of America to recognize that machines do not buy; only human beings have purchasing power. Workers must have money because without this purchasing power the products of industry will rot on the shelf.

Rooney Weds 5th in Mexico Before California Divorce

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD—Mickey Rooney said Wednesday he married a blonde starlet in Mexico before his previous wife divorced him in California.

He said he got a Mexican divorce before the Mexican marriage, but declined to say where the two actions took place.

He told a newspaperman happily that Barbara Thomason is the first of his five wives who is shorter than he.

"She suits me," the entertainer said over the telephone from Las Vegas, Nev. He said his bride is 5 feet 2. Rooney, 5 feet 3, has shown a preference for statuesque beauties in his earlier marriages—to Ava Gardner, Betty Jane Rase, Martha Vickers and Elaine Mahnken.

The romance of Rooney and Miss Thomason came to light last August when she took an overdose of sleeping pills at his house. Police listed the incident as a suicide attempt. She said it was an accident.

At the time, he was appearing at Lake Tahoe.

His manager said then Mickey "had no thought of marriage. For one thing, because he isn't free and, for another, because he isn't going to get married for a long time."

Wife No. 4 won a divorce in nearby Santa Monica last May 18, and that raised questions of how

SURPRISE
New Mrs. Rooney

Rooney could be wed again. California law requires a one-year wait.

"Elaine gave us permission to get married last December," Rooney said. "We went over the border from Texas to get the divorce in Mexico. It took about five days and then we got married. I wanted Elaine to go through with the California divorce to protect herself."

He said he and Miss Mahnken have lived apart for two years.

Rooney, 38, said his bride is 22 and a native of Phoenix, Ariz. She made a couple of movies under the name of Carolyn Mitchell—"but she didn't like the business and quit. We both like it better that way."

He added that he has known her for two years and conducted a longer courtship than with his previous marriages.

"The others were a little bit hasty," he admitted. "They were unfortunate. Some strike it rich the first time; others aren't that lucky."

Asked if this would be his last marriage, he replied: "We certainly hope so." He is appearing at race tracks, left her alone in Las Vegas at the New Frontier Hotel.

When Miss Mahnken obtained her divorce in May, she testified that Rooney spent all his time at race tracks, left her alone while he table-hopped in night clubs, disliked her dinners and embarrassed her in public with vile language. She received a $381,750 property settlement.

liam C. Richards, 19, were sentenced by Judge Edwin M. Stanley who recommended both be eligible for parole after serving eight months.

Testimony revealed the two soldiers were being held in the Ft. Benning, Ga., stockade on AWOL charges when they escaped in March. They were arrested later in Columbia, S.C., and were taken to the Robbins AFB stockade to await transfer back to Ft. Benning when they escaped a second time.

Florida Legislature Votes To End President Primary

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—The Florida Senate Wednesday approved the House version of the bill providing uninstructed Florida delegates to national political conventions and doing away with the presidential preference primary.

The Senate previously had passed its own bill, but by adopting the House bill it speeded the measure to the governor.

At the same time, the Senate passed a bill which sets up machinery for a straw vote on candidates for presidential nominations. The House has passed a companion bill, which the Senate in all likelihood will accept and send to the governor when it arrives.

5 Nude Swimmers Shock Charleston

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—The five sailors stripped—then stacked their uniforms in neat piles on the sand.

People sunning along the beach gasped, then looked again—unable to believe their eyes.

It's an old north European custom to dress on the beach—but the trouble was that these German sailors weren't in Europe.

AT MID-AFTERNOON
They were on the beach at the Isle of Palms in mid-afternoon.

A lady bather ran red-faced to the surfdeck where Mrs. E. L. Walters, wife of the island's police chief, was sitting, and pointed. Mrs. Walters promptly summoned her husband, who dispatched officer Leonard Gay.

Chief Walters said the sailors stripped, put on their bathing suits and went swimming. Then they came out, stripped again, and began scrubbing their suits in the surf.

BEWILDERED PROTESTS
The chief said he understood some European countries followed such a practice on their beaches. He surmised the seamen had tried to explain the custom to Officer Gay, judging from their bewildered protests over being arrested.

"Gay doesn't understand a word

Talmadge Hits Cultural Ties to Reds

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Herman Talmadge (D-Ga.) Wednesday charged Russia is using the cultural exchange program for espionage and propaganda purposes and called for ending the agreement.

The agreement for the cultural exchange expires next January, and Talmadge said he hopes the President "will refuse to jeopardize further the security of this country through any extension of this Trojan-horse agreement."

The junior Georgia senator, in his weekly newsletter, said such exchanges, undertaken in good faith, can promote international understanding and good will.

But he added there is no reason to believe the Russians look upon them as anything but a one-way street.

An Iron Suit Brings $10,000

LONDON (AP)—An old suit that was never worn was bought for 3,570 pounds ($10,000) at an auction here.

It was a suit of jousting armor made for Elector Christian I of Saxony who died before he was due to receive it as a Christmas present in 1651.

2 Boys Seized Ransacking Roosevelt High

Two boys who called at school after hours Wednesday have been arrested at the Fulton Juvenile Detention Home.

Patrolmen J. L. Melton and D. L. Prince said the two—aged 14 and 15—were found in Roosevelt High School.

Breaking through a window, they had accumulated an assortment of radios, pens and pencils, keys and water pistols which had been confiscated.

Patrolmen said they also admitted staging a similar raid on Smith High School immediately before they were caught at Roosevelt.

5 Killed and Sixth Badly Injured As 3 Cars Pile Up in Florida

CALLAHAN, Fla. (AP)—A three-car crash nine miles south of Callahan on U.S. 301 Wednesday killed five persons and left a sixth critically injured.

Wreckage from the three vehicles was strewn along the highway which was blocked for almost an hour.

Deputy Sheriff G. W. Courson of Nassau County listed the dead as:

Jack T. Slaughter, 23, of Gainesville, Fla., riding alone in his car; the Rev. John Churdar, 68, his wife Addie, and a passenger Mary T. Nanashe, all of Chippewa Lake, Ohio, and Mrs. Pearl S. Teamerson, 56, of Ormond Beach, Fla., driver of the third vehicle.

Mrs. Teamerson's husband Arthur, 60, was taken to a hospital in Jacksonville, 20 miles south of Callahan.

WHO BLENDS LORD "C" —AND WHY?

LORD CALVERT (Lord "C") to the connoisseur is a blend of ryes, bourbons, and golden grain neutral spirits from the world's largest whiskey library.

Our blenders eventually choose only twenty-nine of these classics for Lord Calvert. It is a painstaking task. Each classic must harmonize perfectly with all the others. Our blenders insist that there is no other way to combine robust flavor with a light body.

The whiskey in every bottle of Lord "C" has received unanimous approval from these fierce perfectionists. Meeting their standards takes time and trouble. Is it worth it? Ask any connoisseur.

Mills of Marriage Grind Out for TV

By PAUL JONES

Television, which usually is all wrapped up in quiz shows, charades and giveaways, takes on something more constructive Thursday night.

In the first of a series of in-depth studies of vital issues of our time, NBC-TV News is presenting the unvarnished facts about marriage mills—including one in Kingsland, Ga.—teen-age matrimony, lonely hearts clubs and other practices which are altering the institution of marriage in America.

What is more important is that this program, "I Take Thee," is being presented in prime viewing time at 7:30 p.m. (Channel 2). Ordinarily this sort of programming is shunted off to the unwanted afternoon spots on Sunday afternoon. (Six other programs in this series will deal with the Berlin crisis, Red China, Latin America, Africa, top news stories of 1959 and a projection of what might happen in 1960.)

You might be surprised to find that "I Take Thee," while dealing with facts, will be altogether dull. Producer Chet Hagman has put the program together in a manner which should be both informative and entertaining.

In considering the seamier aspects of marriage, the program will be divided into two parts. The first will explore the marriage mills which are actually assembly lines for quick unions.

In one state, for instance, you will hear about a marriage broker who bought radio commercials advertising a marriage package—license, blood test and ceremony, all complete within an hour.

In another, a taxi-driver became a minister so that he could pick up marriage-bound couples at the courthouse and perform the ceremony in his cab.

THE SECOND PHASE of the program will show, for the benefit of the new generation, how people used to get married in lions' cages at the circus, while floating toward the earth suspended from parachutes, while walking a high wire, or sitting atop a flag pole.

An NBC news reporter, Eve Sandefur, will recreate some of her own experiences in gathering material for this show. She enrolled with several actual marriage brokers and went out on several dates in order to get proper background for her story.

The nicest thing about this essay is that it will replace Texas Rodeo and The Lawless Years. I am sorry to say that the replacement will be for this night only.

REALISM WILL BE a factor in another special event on TV Thursday. Playhouse 90 (Channel 5 at 9:30 p.m.) is doing "The Killers of Mussolini," a drama which will deal with the final hours in the life of the late Italian dictator.

It might solve some of the riddles which surrounded the death of Il Duce. Up to now there have been dozens of conflicting stories about how he spent his last day.

Buzz Kulik, producer of the play, said that he and A. E. Hotchner, author of the teleplay, poured over books, diaries and newspaper accounts of Mussolini's last hours.

Published accounts by the children of his widow reveal the dictator was a beleaguered, sick and despondent leader, forced to pin his last hopes on his German allies. Kulik says, "Despite being unable to escape disguised as a German corporal, Mussolini still talked of Hitler as his savior and of Germany rescuing him from the partisans."

"How the surging anti-Fascist fighters seized the dictator and sealed off his last avenue to freedom is the climax to one of history's most dramatic moments," says Kulik.

Hotchner authored the final script for "For Whom the Bell Tolls" and Nehemiah Persoff, who played Pablo in that drama, will be seen as Il Duce.

PUBLIC STENOGRAPHER, at the Henry Grady Hotel, writes: "In reference to your column in which you replied to Old Sour Puss that the spelling of the acid was 'acetylsalicylic,' I beg to differ with you. The correct spelling of the word is 'acetylsalicylic.'"

You are right, mum.

Vic's Son Is Taken Ill Longing for His Dad

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

North American Newspaper Alliance

HOLLYWOOD — Three-year-old Perry Damone became ill in London through missing papa Vic. He recovered when the singer called the boy in the British capital where mother Pier Angeli is filming "S.O.S. Pacific," with Eva Bartok and Eddie Constantine.

Originally, Pier was going to leave the boy with her twin sister, Marisa Pavan, in Paris.

She will return to Hollywood when the movie is completed, to face a custody fight for the boy with his father. When Anita Ekberg flew off to Europe after filing suit for divorce from Anthony Steel, who should be at the airport to kiss her good-bye but—yes, Mr. Steel. Looked like a reconciliation, but I'd guess not—I expect her to marry Walter Chiari.

First, they tortured Ginger Rogers on the age count in England. Then they were just as cruel in reviewing her television show. Ginger is hoping for kinder treatment with her New York play, "The Pink Jungle."

Vera Miles is up for a top role in "Joynka" with Gina Lollobrigida and Van Heflin. Only problem: She would have to go to Rome and this would mean leaving husband Gordon Scott. . . . But maybe the film will coincide with Gordon's personal-appearance tour to promote his "Tarzan's Greatest Adventure," made in Africa. All during shooting there, Gordon enjoyed excellent health. So—

'Too Young' Moralizes on Cheating

8:30-9 (NBC)—Too Young to Go Steady has a moral tonight—cheating shows but never goes—and it's all sweetness and light. Brigid Bazlen, as Pam Blake, cheats and gets away with it. Enter mother and father and her conscience and you can figure the rest.

9:30-10 (NBC)—Laugh Line should be extra funny tonight, with Abe Burrows seated on the panel. His sense of humor is so off-beat it's almost on-beat, and he should fit the format like an elastic glove. Abe and fellow panelists Dorothy London, Shelley Berman and Pat Harrington Jr. will consider several vignettes, among them one showing a man on a desert island with a choice of two girls.

9:30-11 (CBS)—Playhouse 90, turning to history with increasing frequency, tonight tells the story of "The Killers of Mussolini." The play is the work of A. E. Hotchner, who adapted "For Whom the Bell Tolls," and is a creditable piece of work, thoroughly researched and seemingly historically accurate. It shows Mussolini's intense personal fear, his indecision over selecting possible avenues of escape, his last hysterical attempt at flight. Some of the sub-plots are obviously fictionalized and most of the conversation is invented—but it is all logical and it could have happened this way. Nehemiah Persoff, using his own continental accent, plays Mussolini, heading a large cast. This is the program's biggest production of the year, from the standpoint of equipment used—two sound stages and a taped remote. The latter was made in Franklin Reservation Canyon, an area of California which resembles the Italian lake country, where Mussolini was captured and killed. A Strato Tower crane, which enables the camera to rise 72 feet in the air, was used here to show the escape convoy trying to make it to Switzerland.

10:10-10:30 (NBC)—Groucho Marx gets good mileage out of the beat generation tonight. Among the You Bet Your Life guests will be Otto and Lyn Joy Pettigrew, a pair of off-beatniks. They sculpt, paint and have a happy pad. The other team is a housewife and a "retired rolling stone," but it's the Pettigrews who provide most of the laughs.

Increase Salt In Hot Weather

The commonest unpleasant effect of summer heat is a form of exhaustion we are likely to suffer, especially on the earliest hot days. One feels completely unable to carry on normally. There is usually profuse sweating, and there may be faintness to the point of temporary unconsciousness.

This form of heat prostration is not serious. No extensive change has taken place within the body. There has been a change in the distribution of circulating blood with less to the internal organs and more to the skin. From sweating there may also be a slight lessening of body fluid and salt, which is an important part of the body fluid.

When the body becomes accustomed to hot weather, the loss of salt lessens and the unpleasant effect of heat is also decreased.

The cure for this slight derangement is to reduce physical activity until the body becomes adjusted and to restore the salt lost through the sweat by taking it in the form of tablets or in water.

Salt helps always when unusual physical effort has to be made in hot weather. Golfers or tennis players who play during very hot weather should carry salt tablets or capsules in their pockets and take them during the game.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 NT. Pass 3 NT. Pass
Pass Pass

Opening lead: Five of ♦.

Today's hand proved most frustrating to declarer, yet with a little reflection at trick one he might have assured success even against the demon who distributed the cards in this highly sadistic fashion.

The bidding requires little comment. Although North had 14 high card points, this was not sufficient for a slam invitation due to his evenly balanced distribution. Even if his partner had a maximum no trump, 18 plus 14 only comes to 32.

West led the five of diamonds and East's jack forced the queen. With eight top card tricks in hand, declarer had numerous resources for his ninth and ample time in which to find it. He first tried the club suit, leading low to the jack. Hindsight analysis will hasten to point out that he could have picked up three club tricks by playing the ace and king, but a low club to the jack is the superior play. It loses only where East has the doubleton queen, but gains where West has four or five headed by the queen, a much more common holding. It was unfortunate that declarer did not lay down one club honor first, however, for this would have projected an immediate end play.

When East won his queen of clubs he returned the seven. Declarer then tried to find a club break, but met with disappointment. That diamonds would not break was a foregone conclusion, but declarer tested the suit for confirmation. He then attempted to find West with the king of hearts and led low to the queen. East won and returned a heart. Declarer had one more chance in the spade finesse, but went wrong and gave up the ghost.

Declarer should assume that the diamond lead had been from four. East's jack is, therefore, singleton. Without sacrificing a trick, declarer may permit East to hold it. What then can he return? If it is a heart, dummy's queen becomes a winner. If it is a club, South merely permits it to run to the jack and three tricks are assured in the suit. If it is a spade, things really become too easy.

Neither Wanted The Last Word In This Affair

LONDON (UPI)—George Finch went home Tuesday night and had dinner with his wife without telling her he just had been granted an interim divorce decree on grounds of cruelty.

Finch, 42, had told the judge he had no intention of turning his wife, Alice, 38, out of the house they have shared—in separate rooms, scarcely speaking—for two years.

In that case, the judge said Finch would have to leave himself.

"Has George got his divorce?" asked Mrs. Finch later. "I didn't know... I didn't ask him, but I did think he would tell me."

RHYME A DAY

By OLLIE REEVES

"Woman shoots 'unfaithful' husband."—News item. (This sort of thing is getting monotonous.)

Although a tom-cat has nine lives . . . And, maybe, twice as many wives . . . He handles them much better than . . . The creature that is known as "man" . . . For when this "creature" emulates . . . The cat, with his nocturnal dates . . . The news will certainly be spread . . . And he'll wake up some morning, dead.

We would not say, "It serves him right" . . . Because the poets say, "The night . . . Was made for love," and that is true . . . But, brother, I am telling you . . . "The night is also made for rest" . . . And home is where you do it best.

Now, what we're trying hard to say . . . Is, when the tom-cat goes astray . . . He only risks one life in nine . . . But when a man gets out of line . . . He runs the risk of being shot . . . And giving up the ONE he's got.*

(*Somewhat ungrammatical but nonetheless true.)

I Forgot Dairy Month And All Those Cows, Too

In the June 1 column I talked about the various things June is celebrated for. I forgot Dairy Month, but Phil Campbell, our commissioner of agriculture, reminded me of it with some facts and figures: 1,500,000 farm families in the United States derive all or part of their income from dairy cows. Dairy products 19 per cent of the gross national income from agriculture. Dairy products supply 30 per cent of the nation's diet of animal proteins and 15 per cent of total retail food sales. The dairy industry is the world's largest user of motor trucks.

And of cows.

Graduation Is REALLY Commencement

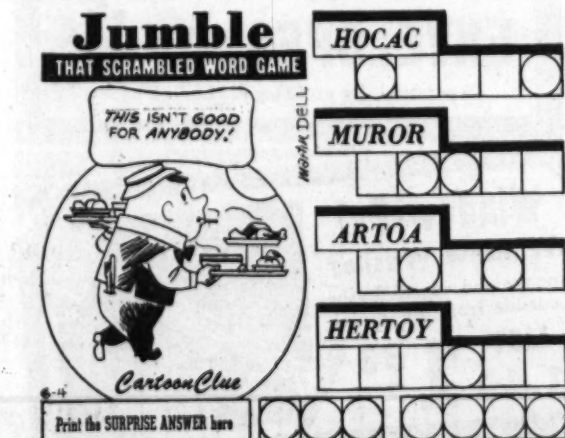

Dr. Edwin Harrison of Georgia Tech said at a meeting the other day that the Tech graduate with an electrical engineering or physics degree could step right into a job paying, on the average, $6,300 per year.

If the graduate has a master's degree, the pay jumps to around $8,000, and if he holds a Ph.D., the sky is the limit. And, mind you, these graduates are ones with education, but no experience.

Ah, you graduates! 'Twas not always thus—not even for Tech graduates. Many a middle-aged Tech graduate has made a fortune in the selling business because there was just no market for an engineer back in the 30s and he had to sell something to make a living. If he was a good salesman, why, he kept at it, and is still in the field.

The point of all this is to point out to the graduates of the Class of '59, both college and high school, that the word "commencement" often used to define graduation is a true term. You are commencing a career. (Or you may be graduating to higher learning.)

One word of advice to graduates: Pick a job you like to do; don't insist on having the one which pays the most money. Believe it or not, you will be spending at least eight full hours a day, five days a week, at this job—and if you aren't happy doing it, there isn't enough money in the world to pay for the misery you will undergo. You will suffer and your family will suffer.

Unscramble the 4 sets of letters, making a word of each jumble. Print each word, a letter to a square, beneath each jumble. The letters you have printed on the circled squares may then be arranged to spell the surprise answer suggested by the cartoon clue. What is it? (answer tomorrow)

Your Stars Today

Daily Guide—It would be well to slow down a little today and tomorrow, to stop talking or going about and stick to essential matters. Organize and put in order, getting an early morning start.

In the evening there are still opportunities for quiet recreations and pleasant contacts with friends, but keep entertainment simple. Taureans may be able to collect some gains made recently by co-operating with others, especially partner, mate or associate.

Tomorrow, the hours before a new cycle of energy is started by the moon, should be a time of completing old business and organizing new projects to begin next week.

Happy Birthday, Gemini! This week should give you a big push toward bigger and better things, so be ready to put plans into operation next week and continue to push them actively.

Take care not to be hasty around the 24th. Domestic surroundings are likely to be hectic in July. In the fall some golden opportunities can come your way through other people who may be associates, the public or a closer tie of partner or mate.

Critical Role Seen for Grads At AF School

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI)—Air Force Secretary James H. Douglas told the Air Force Academy's first graduating class Wednesday its members might play a critical role in maintaining Western World freedom.

He advised the 207 graduates they were being commissioned in an Air Force which spanned the free world and had a "major role in holding the Communist world in check." He said each would have a chance to confront "the challenge of communism with the understanding" of the free.

Manila Leopard Hunted by 350

MANILA (UPI)—A man-eating Thai leopard that escaped from the zoo was hunted in Manila Wednesday by 350 policemen and a team of trained dogs.

The leopard jumped through a seven-foot-high window in its den and squeezed through the iron grill of a cage.

The leopard arrived at the zoo two months ago as a gift from Prince Rongsiyakorn Aphakorn, Thai ambassador to the Philippines.

Jackson's Probers To Hire Lawyer

By JAMES SHEPPARD

JEFFERSON—Jackson County's Citizens Committee announced Wednesday night it will hire legal counsel to aid in its investigation of the county's financial affairs.

Boy, 3, Is Injured By Police Car Here

A three-year-old child Wednesday was admitted to Grady Hospital for observation after being struck by a police car, records show. The child, Richard Lee, Negro, of 1310 English Ave., NW, suffered a skull fracture and abrasions, Patrolman R. E. McLarin said.

McLarin said he was driving north on English Avenue and had stopped behind a parked car to permit other traffic to pass. He said that as he started off, the child darted from behind the parked car directly into the path of his machine.

No charge was made against McLarin.

SAFARI BUSHED

Old Sambo (Still Having Time of Life

By WARREN BOSWORTH

Sambo the spunky monkey is still on a spree, swinging merrily, merrily from tree to tree.

"I'm bushed and worn to a frazzle," Mrs. John Braun exclaimed Wednesday night as she recapped the day's doings to snare Sambo from his treetop Shangri-la in Decatur.

Mrs. Braun, who directs DeKalb County's Humane Society, said she and a number of others tried just about "every trick in the book" to get the monkey down.

"I've talked. I've cried. Why, I've even screamed at him to get him out of those trees," Mrs. Braun said.

HAVING TIME OF LIFE

But Sambo, who apparently is having the time of his life, just kept flitting about the outstretched hands of folks who want to put him back into the confines of the human world.

Sambo, a 4-year-old ringtail monkey, made his bold swing for freedom and the treetops Monday afternoon. Bill Smith the monkey's owner at the time, said Sambo became afraid of Smith's 20 pet snakes and decided to "move on."

The monkey left his home at 232 W. College Ave., in Decatur, and took up a hasty residence in the beckoning treetops behind the home of Mrs. R. D. Harper at 342 Greenwood Ave.

SEVERAL TRY IN VAIN

Several dozen persons tried to entice Sambo down Tuesday but he refused.

Smith declared Sambo a free agent Tuesday and said whoever wanted him could come and fetch him.

Even the enticing come-hither look and chattering of a simian siren, Blondie, failed Wednesday as Sambo went his merry way.

Blondie is a five-year-old spider monkey. Smith loaned Blondie to Mrs. Braun to try and lure the modern, space-loving Sambo back to earth.

"He's not starving, that's for sure," Mrs. Braun said. "The little rascal has been eating everything we'd take out there to bait him with."

The committee met for three hours in secret session and a spokesman afterward announced the committee's intention.

While the 23-man committee met, Sol. Gen. Alfred Quillian challenged the portion of a special audit, released last week, which alleges he and Sheriff John B. Brooks each profited in a $9,000 transaction.

The solicitor general said he had sent a letter to County Attorney Floyd Hoard asking him to file suit against him (Quillian) so he will be "vindicated."

ATLANTA DEPOSIT MADE

Stating that he had "done nothing illegal, improper or dishonorable," Quillian said he had deposited $4,500 in an Atlanta bank to pay the whole or any part of the money in satisfaction of any judgment that might be brought against him.

Later the citizens committee, comprised of former grand jury members, passed another resolution praising Quillian for his "guidance, counsel, and untiring efforts in helping the committee to fulfill its responsibilities."

The resolution said that while the committee was "still officially a jury, it investigated the matter involving the purchase and sale of insolvent costs owned by the former solicitor general of his circuit."

NO VIOLATION SEEN

The resolution further said "the jury and subsequently the committee knows of no violation of law pertaining to those transactions."

Morris Bryan Jr., spokesman for the committee, said the group had voted unanimously to obtain legal counsel. The committee is composed of the 25 grand jurors whom Judge Maylon Clinkscales discharged last February and three members at large.

Three of the committee members were absent Wednesday.

Doomed Man Pleads Guilt, Is Given Life

A Negro who had been under a death sentence since 1957 Wednesday was granted a new trial. He immediately pleaded guilty to a murder charge and got a life sentence.

The unusual chain of events came in the case against Tommie Lee Trammell, who was convicted of the shotgun shooting of another Negro on June 13, 1957, by a Fulton Superior Court jury which did not recommend mercy.

Judge Luther Alverson imposed the mandatory death penalty.

Dan Copeland and Phil Slotin, defense attorneys, filed an extraordinary motion for a new trial on grounds that Trammell's wife, Bessie, had illegally refused to testify in the 1957 trial on grounds she was Trammell's wife.

The defense attorneys showed that at the time of the trial the woman had a previously undiscovered common-law marriage to a Negro man named Otis Collins.

Evidence that she was qualified to give indicated that Trammell, at the time of the slaying, was under the apprehension that he was required to shoot in self-defense, the attorneys said.

SMOOTH SLEDDING FOR C130—A Georgia-built Lockheed C130 lands on an unprepared Arctic snowfield in Greenland using 20-foot skis to haul supplies from Stewart Air Force Base,

'Slick' Smith Indicted Over Gambling Tax

L. E. (Slick) Smith, 34, a key figure in the Horace Ingram lottery case, was indicted Wednesday by a U.S. grand jury on a charge of failure to pay federal gambling taxes.

Smith, convicted of conspiring to avoid payment of federal wagering taxes in Federal Court in Atlanta in 1957, is now under bond pending a Supreme Court decision on an appeal of the 1957 case.

Fulton Asks Judges Help Speed Building

Fulton County commissioners in a resolution Wednesday asked county judges to work out a system of courtroom use so that construction of the new Civil Court building can continue on schedule.

Some work on the $1,649,000 building has been delayed when judges complained that the workmen made so much noise trials were disrupted.

In their resolution, the commissioners said the construction superintendent was afraid that if he didn't reduce the noise, he or his men might be subject to contempt of court.

The commissioners said the building would be of great service to the citizens of Fulton County when completed and that the contractor has a set time limit for completing it.

The commissioners said that through a "spirit of cooperation on the part of all parties concerned" temporary inconveniences and interruptions might be successfully endured and worked out to everyone's mutual satisfaction.

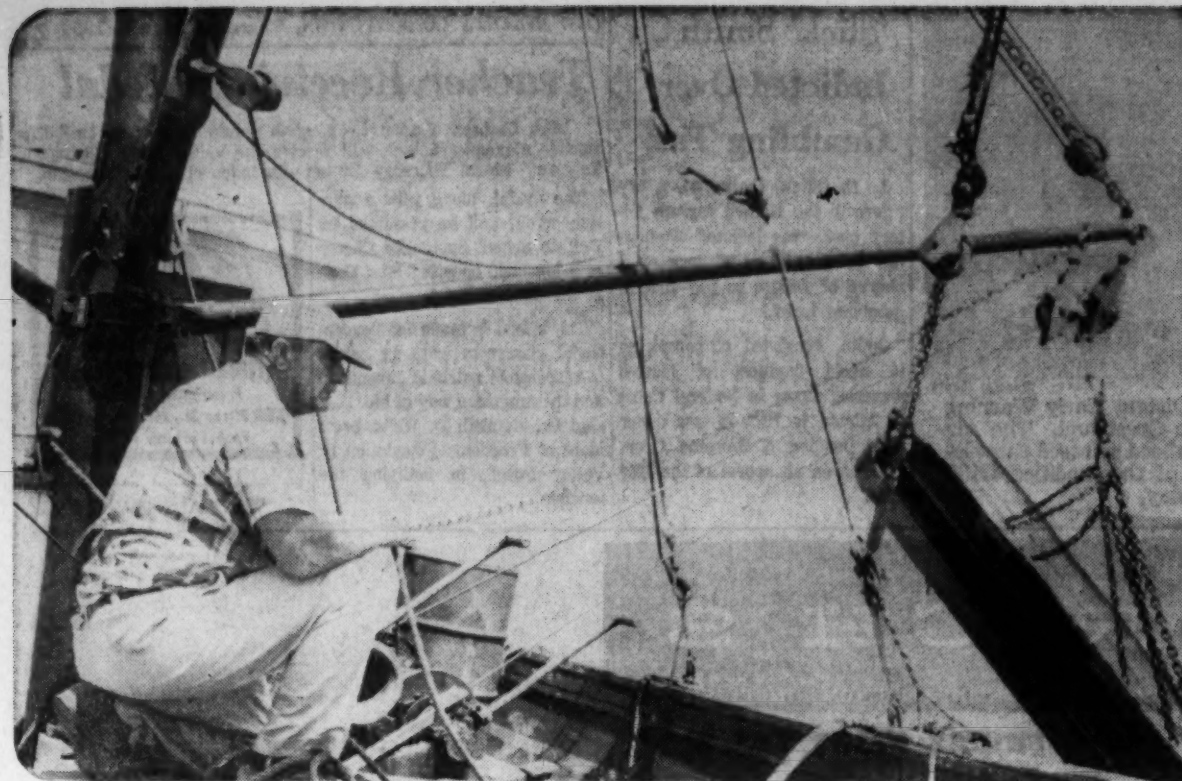

The resolution is addressed to the county's nine superior court, two criminal court and seven civil court judges.

Construction on the new building, which will house all Fulton civil courts, began last June. The courts are scheduled to be transferred in October.

SKIPPER LOWERS HUGE NET TO DRAG FLOOR OF THE OCEAN FOR ONE OF DAY'S HAULS
Capt. Burrows, One of Georgia's First Shrimpers, A Veteran of More Than 40 Years in Business

TEEN-AGE MAIL

He Wants To Grow Four Inches

Dear Mrs. Ricker:

I am 5 feet 9 inches and weigh 130 pounds. My problem is how can I grow about four or five inches? Everybody in my room is several inches taller than I am. I would also like to know how I can put on a few pounds of muscle as I think I am underweight, too. I am 15. Thank you.

If everybody in your room is several inches taller than you, I believe yours is the tallest class of 15-year-olds in the country! When my son was 15 he was shorter than you are, but now he is an even six feet tall. You, too, probably will grow some more in the next few years but you will just have to be patient in the meantime.

However, there is something you can do for yourself in the "muscle" department. Weight lifting is an excellent muscle builder. A boy who has a slight build can do wonders for his physique by sticking to an every-other-day routine of exercising with bar bells, dumbbells, leg and neck exercises and doing push-ups and other body-building exercises. In many cities weight lifting equipment is available for use at the YMCA.

Atlantans Plan Parties in Honor Of New Yorker, Miss Cora Beard

A New Yorker expected Saturday for a 10-day visit at Fernland, the Remington road home of Maj. and Mrs. Walter Slayden, is Miss Cora Beard, Mrs. Slayden's former classmate at Columbia University.

Miss Beard's arrival is always the signal for much entertaining in her honor. Her hosts will start the ball rolling, so to speak, by entertaining at the cocktail hour on Saturday. Sunday evening Mrs. Frania Tye Lee will be hostess at the Capital City Country Club and Tuesday evening I. M. Sheffield Jr. will be host at dinner in the Mirador Room of the Capital City Club.

Mrs. Lloyd Davis has planned a luncheon for Miss Beard at the Cherokee Club for Wednesday, and that evening the Frank Macks will entertain at their Northside home. Mrs. Howard Peavy has set her luncheon at the Peachtree Golf Club for Thursday and Mrs. Kiser Stephenson will give a dinner that evening at her Chatham road home.

On Friday of next week Mrs. Slayden and her guest will lunch with Mrs. A. Worth Hobby at her Riverview road residence, after which they will dine with Dr. and Mrs. John Campbell at the Ansley Golf Club. Sunday, June 14, the Slaydens and Miss Beard will be guests for luncheon of Mr. and Mrs. John Hartley at the Capital City Country Club.

PLEASANT RIDGE, the country home of Mrs. A. Q. Smith near Roswell, will reverberate with childish voices during the next few weeks, for she is expecting her son and daughter, the Jan R. Smiths, and their children, Judy, Ralph and Stephen, of Miami Shores, during the weekend. They plan to spend a month at Pleasant Ridge.

MRS. CHARLES R. YOUNTS is back from Hollins, Va., where she attended commencement at her alma mater and was elected to the Hollins College board of trustees as alumnae representative.

J. EVERETT VOGT has arrived from New York to join

Mrs. Vogt at the Walker Terrace home of their son and daughter, the James Alstons, and to attend the Alstons' 15th wedding anniversary celebration. After his visit here Mr. Vogt will go to Canada and thence to England on business.

The 'Pinta' Doesn't Know Columbus, She Brings Georgia Shrimp to You

By BETTY CARROLLTON
Constitution Staff Writer

DARIEN—The 'Pinta' had a rock and roll that would make Presley blush in shame. Her bow dipped deep as she plowed through the choppy waters some 40 miles off the Georgia coast. Lurching and leaning, she answered every demand of her expert skipper, Capt. Hugh Burrows of Valdosta.

The sturdy, 55-foot boat was getting a real workout as she was put through the paces of the daily search for shrimp that would at length find the way to dinner tables throughout the state.

The Pinta's search this day began long before dawn. She was skillfully slipped from her moorings at Sea Pines Dock about 3:30 a.m., the lights of the channel markings winking a flitting farewell. After getting her boat safely underway, "Capt'n Hugh" turned the wheel over to his one-man crew, Bob Hawkins, the Negro seaman who's been working aboard the Pinta for eight years (for this particular journey, the crew was supplemented by a Constitution reporter and photographer).

REPAIRS NEEDED

Then Capt'n Hugh settled on a small stool in the stern to repair his fishing nets, the naked light bulb casting an eerie glow as his needle nipped and tucked with the efficient speed of an able-bodied seamstress.

Constitution photographer Billy Downs, his complexion blending beautifully with the billious green of the water, managed to capture the scene with his camera.

The Pinta had fought her way past Sapelo, Blackbeard and St. Catherine's islands when, just after dawn, Capt'n Hugh signaled Bob to drop the try-net for the day's first sampling of the fishing ground. By now, more than a dozen similar craft from various docks were in view. The ship's radio crackled as skippers made reports of their try-net yields for neighboring shrimpers.

The Pinta's try-net dragged the ocean's floor for some 20 minutes before being hoisted aboard to disgorge its catch. The skipper inspected the contents, returned the try-net to the depths and ordered the main net dropped, where it would rake the bottom for more than two hours.

Back in the pilot house, Capt'n Hugh relaxed over gulps of strong coffee Bob prepared in the boat's compact galley. A hefty man in his 60s, the skipper gave the impression of an affable Wallace Berry as he recalled earlier days as a shrimper. Veteran of more than forty years in the business, nearly all of which has been spent around his native Valona, he has an accident-free record.

Although he and his wife have no children, they have lots of nieces and nephews, most of whom welcome any opportunity to accompany Uncle Hugh when he takes out one of his six boats. "My family has been after me to quit this business for years," he revealed, "but I couldn't ever stand just staying around the docks."

He observed that "things are a lot different now than in the old days, what with ship-to-shore and ship-to-ship radio, automatic pilots and the like." Such equipment has, of course, made shrimping easier, and lessened worry of his wife.

"Nowadays," Capt'n Hugh continued, "I can get on the radio and be hooked up to the house in five minutes."

WIFE WON'T COME

In the early years of their marriage, Mrs. Burrows went along on the breadwinning outings "once in a while." But after being at sea during "one of the worst Nor' easterns we've ever had," she limited her activities to lures of the landlubber. Mrs. Burrows does, however, turn part of her husband's catch into delectable dishes at the dinner table.

Capt'n Hugh interrupted the conversation to set the automatic pilot and join Bob on deck to bring up the huge net, groaning under its weight of miscellaneous marine matter. The net was heaved aboard to disgorge a catch that was to be typical of several hauls during the day.

There were dozens of the gelatin-like jelly fish, plague of the fishermen since there is no practical use for them, glistening evilly in the sun; a baby shark, measuring little more than three feet in length flopped among slinky silver eels; more than a dozen species of fish of all sizes (some of which Bob culled to cook) and seaweed of bright yellow, fuchsia and tan.

Evidently the blue crabs, a patch of orange marking the thousands of eggs they carried, were the smarter of the captive species. They scampered quickly to the rectangular openings of the boat, dropping once more into the water.

Scattered throughout the catch were the plump, grey shrimp, object of the day's hunt. These Capt'n Hugh and Bob quickly separated from the miscellaneous matter, putting them into a large bucket. The useless species were pushed back to sea.

The skipper and his crew turned their attention to the shrimp, and, with one quick, deft motion of thumb and forefinger, "headed" the catch, leaving only the plump bodies that would be packed for seafood counters of supermarkets. These went into the ice-filled hold. There they remained until the Pinta returned to the dock where hands were waiting to pack them for shipping.

It was late afternoon when Capt'n Hugh decided, much to the photographer's relief, to head the Pinta toward home base. Enroute, the skipper leaned from the pilot house to point out herds of cattle along island beaches ("they're trying to escape the flies on the island," Capt'n Hugh explained); rocks from all over the world that lined the edges of another island, and traces of a pier where ships from all nations tied up for inspection years ago.

Passing Blackbeard Island, Capt'n Hugh observed that "folks say there's lots of treasure buried there somewhere. Every year a lot of people flock to the island to search. But I've never heard of anyone finding a buried treasure chest."

And Capt'n Hugh has never been among those buried-treasure seekers. He finds his treasure under the sea.

Get Car Ready for Summer

Q. I know it is late in the season to be asking this, but is it worthwhile to have my car made ready for summer driving? J. B., Dallas.

A. Auto experts agree some maintenance jobs should be done every spring, J. B.

Spring is the time when you should pay real attention to the radiator and cooling system. Radiator repair or replacement is expensive. You're increasing the chance that you'll need such a job if you don't have anti-freeze drained and replaced by clear water.

ADD RUST INHIBITOR

The rust inhibitors in permanent antifreezes often wear out during a normal winter's driving. Eventually, the antifreeze in your engine may actually encourage corrosion and damage the radiator and water pump or even the cylinder block.

When your radiator has been drained add to the water one of the good rust inhibitors. Your service station attendant can recommend one. Then next fall, have the radiator flushed again and fresh antifreeze put in for your winter driving.

If summer means a lot of vacation driving, J. B., you're naturally interested in good gas economy. You should have the motor tuned every six months, anyway, and before you start on a long hot summer trip, it's almost a "must." A good tuning job that includes cleaning spark plugs, checking your engine's timing and adjusting its carburetor can increase your gas mileage as much as 20 per cent.

USE SUMMER OIL

It's a good idea to have the oil filter checked and oil changed—depending, of course, on how many miles you've driven since you last had this maintenance done. Don't forget, too, that your car performs better in summer with heavier oil than winter oil. Your owner's manual will tell you what weight oil you need. If you don't have the book handy, tell the serviceman what kind of use your car gets and let him recommend the proper weight and grade.

Remember that summer driving, particularly long trips over hot highways, is hard on tires. Have yours inspected before you start any long, high-speed trip. Replace any that are worn smooth or are starting to crack on the sidewalls.

CHINESE STUDENT TO ESCORT TWO FRIENDS ON ROUND-WORLD TRIP
Miss Ling, Left, Shows Nancy Edwards Art of Chinese Eating

This Time, Scott Friends Will Visit Malayan Coed

By HARRIETTE WEINSTEIN

In the summer a young girl's fancy lightly turns to trips abroad. But a fragile beauty from the Orient will turn her two college friends' trip into something beyond the usual.

Mei Ching Ling, whose American name is Mildred, and two Agnes Scott College friends will leave New York June 15 en route to many places, including Mei Ching's home in Malaya.

"This will be my first trip home in four years," smiled Mei Ling, a graduating senior at Scott. "And it will be my first as well to the many other places we'll visit."

She and Janice Bowman and Ann Rivers Payne, both from Virginia, will visit London, Paris, Geneva, Zurich, Rome, Florence, Calcutta, Bangkok and Singapore as well as Malaya.

MOVE TO SINGAPORE

Originally from China, Mei Ling and her family moved from Shanghai to Singapore when the Communists took control. Her parents, both graduates of the University of Southern California, managed a hotel in Singapore.

The family later moved to Kuala Lumpur, the capital of Malaya, where her father operates the Federal Hotel.

"There's a Chinese restaurant, a European restaurant and an American bar in the hotel," she grinned. "And it is all air-conditioned."

The girls will stop in Rome for a visit with Mei Ching's aunt, whom Mei Ching hasn't seen since she was 5.

"And I'm looking forward to

Mrs. Kendrick To Head Secretaries

Mrs. Cammie Lee Kendrick is the new president of the Atlanta Chapter of the National Secretaries Assn. and will preside for the first time at the meeting on June 12 at the Henry Grady Hotel.

Other officers are Mrs. Jewel Cofer and Mrs. Sara Sneed, vice presidents; Mrs. Jean Marshall, recording secretary; Miss Catherine Jackson, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Kathryn Sheppard, treasurer.

Each year, the Atlanta chapter of the NSA sponsors a series of examinations for an award of the certified professional secretary certificate. Information concerning qualifications for the examination as well as membership in the association may be had by contacting Mrs. Ann Drummond at the Ivan Allen Company.

seeing Florence," added the history and political science major. "I just finished doing a paper on it."

VISIT MINES

The last part of their journey will be the month-long visit with Mei Ling's family, with trips to a rubber plantation, a tin mine, Singapore and other places nearby scheduled.

The visit will not be a complete family reunion, however. Mei Ling has a brother who is a sophomore at Cornell University here in the states. And one of her two sisters is in school in Australia.

The girls will dock at San Francisco Sept. 4. For Mei Ching, it will be more school—this time graduate work at one of the Eastern colleges.

"After that, I plan to go back to Malaya to teach—or whatever is most needed."

Mei Ching's discovery of Agnes Scott is a story in itself.

MEETS AGNES SCOTT

Peggy Armstrong Durbin, a free lance writer for the New York Times, is an Agnes Scott graduate. And Mei Ching's mother and Mr. Durbin, a Times staff member, had worked on the China Press many years ago. When the Ling family moved to Malaya, they again met the Durbins. And Mei Ling found out about Agnes Scott.

Color and Dairy Products Are the Bywords for June

By VIRGINIA DYSARD KEZIAH
Constitution Food Editor

Colorful is the byword for a June meal, in fact for all June meals. And it's not just the reds, greens, and purples we are talking about, because the whites, yellows and oranges of dairy foods give the summer menu contrast of shade which in turn makes for more eye appeal, as well as taste appeal.

The dairy industry traditionally celebrates June as dairy month because dairy production reaches its peak during early summer, and plentiful supplies are available to consumers. You are urged to use milk, butter, cheese, and ice cream while they are abundant.

Eggs are the brightest spot at the poultry counters. Prices are as low as they have been in some years. There are two reasons for the abundance of eggs, reports Mrs. Betty Alexander, extension consumer information specialist. The first is that there are 3 per cent more laying hens than we had a year ago at this same time. Secondly, these hens are producing more eggs than were available last year.

UP AND DOWN

Poultry counters are alight all up and down, because broiler-fryers too can give you a good meat at cheaper prices. Especially since the cook-out boom is on, chicken is in demand.

The retail price of meats remains about the same. Watch for store specials for best values. Some pork cuts are appearing at higher prices, but hams, picnics and bacon are being featured by many retail outlets. Prices on sausage are declining, due to less demand in hot weather.

Most beef prices remain steady. The greatest economy at the beef counter will likely be found in store specials. Fresh and frozen fish are in ample supply. Attractive luncheon meat specials are offered for quick meals.

Early varieties of Georgia peaches are coming to the markets. The peak of supply is about 2 to 3 weeks away. Prices will likely decline as volume shipments start. Watermelons are cheaper this week. Cantaloupes will be at last week's level. Citrus supplies are not as abundant, but quality is still good. Strawberries, blueberries, grapes, plums and cherries are in some fruit displays this week. Bananas remain about the same in price and quality.

Miss Stoddard attends Avondale High School. Her fiancé graduated from Hoke Smith High School in May and will continue his studies in the fall.

showing lower prices this week, while others remain at last week's levels. Green beans, squash, peppers and cucumbers are showing price declines. Tomatoes, carrots and celery have advanced some at wholesale level, but will be at last week's levels at retail. Lettuce remains attractively priced, and local greens continue in good supply. Red bliss potatoes are cheaper, while others are retailing at the same to slightly higher.

Milk, the product of the humble cow, claims the high rank of being nature's most perfect food. Milk's nutritive contribution of calcium, riboflavin and high quality protein makes it a vital food in the every day lives of people of all ages, from infants to adults. And, every part of the food can be enjoyed and is easily digested by all, down to the last drop!

MILK INCREASE

For several years we have had an increase in milk output per cow, and it is anticipated that 1959 will continue this pattern. The total output is expected to run slightly above 1958, and even higher than the 1957 record of 125.9 billion pounds. May and June are big production months of the year. Consequently, all dairy products will be in plentiful supply and much attention will be given to their usage.

Nutritionists recommend the following number of eight-ounce glasses daily:

Three to four glasses for children.
Four or more glasses for teenagers.

Two or more glasses for adults.

It's warm weather again; and everywhere the accent is on cool, refreshing beverages. So, to satisfy lagging appetites and to "fill the nutrition bill," plan today to make your family a milk drink.

Does Your Pay Qualify for Singletons?

Atlantans are making an attempt to organize a local chapter of the Singletons, which counts chapters in nine major cities in the country.

"There is no way for single people to contribute to the community like married people do in their club work," explained Richard B. Kay, Cleveland attorney and national president of the U.S. Singletons.

The organizational requirements include being single, between the ages of 25 and 50, with income over $5,000 a year for men and $3,600 for women, interested in doing civic and welfare work.

Mr. Kay, 202 Engineers Building, Cleveland 14, Ohio, recently met with a group of interested Atlantans.

How old is she?

Mrs. Herbold of Hollywood looks much younger than she is because she avoids gray hair with Herbold Pomade. Is she 30-40-60? What's your guess?

Amazing Herbold Pomade Tones Down Grayness Hair Looks Young Again

If the years have stolen the natural color and oils from your hair, leaving streaks of dry lifeless gray, making you look older than you really are—simply use Herbold Pomade instead of your regular hair dressing. Massage it in with fingertips. That's all there is to it!

This clean, easy-to-use hair cream adds color to gray, streaked, faded or mousey hair, so gradually, and blends it so perfectly with your own natural color, that your hair will look young and alive again...with the color it had before it became old and gray.

If you are completely gray, or have only a few gray hairs—if you were once blonde, brunette, or even if your hair is dyed—this one and only Herbold Pomade will add just the right touch of lasting color for your hair. The improvement is so real, so gradual, that no one—not even yourself—can tell you are using anything but a fine hair dressing—because the special oils in Herbold Pomade groom, condition and restore that silky, alive, neat young look.

Not a coal tar dye, tint or rinse. That's why hair never looks artificial or dyed. No sudden change. No grayness at the scalp. No shades to confuse you.

Start using Herbold Pomade today. In 1 to 3 weeks you will feel the excitement of looking younger, with the assurance of no more gray hair for you.

FOR MEN AND WOMEN

Every Old Car Needs a Young Boy

Now I don't mention this to undermine public confidence in our national safety but the fact is: Uncle Sam is letting a pair of our coast line's most gallant defenders come home!

Yes sir, our Coast Guardsman, who has distinguished himself as one of boot camp's most intrepid dishwashing and garbage men, is getting 15 days' leave. He and a friend arrive this weekend and naturally our household is in a whirl. When he used to go to military school we plunged into preparations which his irreverent younger sisters called killing the prodigal calf for the fatted son.

This time I haven't been able to concentrate on the prodigal calf or even my usual bout with cake mixes because I am weighed down by a matter of graver moment. I have let the battery on his automobile go dead.

Before he left he took the tires off the ancient Chevrolet, which he bought some months ago for $25, and heisted it up on blocks. He and friends worked many a night in the garage performing some mysterious rites which were to guarantee the well-being of this valuable steed. Then, displaying a touching faith in his mother's ability to cope with things which she didn't remotely understand, he solemnly locked the garage and turned the combination of the lock over to me with these words:

"Come out every few days and start her up. Don't want the motor to get stiff or the battery to go dead."

Overwhelmed with sentiment because, after all, he was going off to defend his country, I blindly promised. And by some miracle and the good offices of his knowledgeable friends, we kept her running for a couple of months. Then one day his good friend went out to exercise the car and she wouldn't start.

"You can get the battery charged and she'll be all right," this lad said and forthwith departed for Coast Guard boot camp himself.

leaving me all alone with a mute and wheel-less 10-year-old Chevrolet.

Now I'm a Model-T girl myself. Except for changing a tire when there's absolutely no way of avoiding it, I haven't put hand to an ailing automobile since 1934 when we all used to pile out, seize hold of and violently agitate a machine I had named Henrietta. (On second thought, I guess she was a Model-A. Wouldn't that be the one with a rumble seat?) Anyhow, by the simple expedient of leaning up against Henrietta or rocking her spiritedly to and fro you could practically always get her going. And if that failed we had a crank and usually a young man who was willing to use it.

I brooded on these matters until the obvious answer struck me. A young man. Aside from owning a garage I don't know anything more useful in an automobile crisis than an able-bodied male somewhere between the ages of 15 and 21. Get them much older than that and the fine light of the old-car entrepreneur has faded from their eyes. They want a this year's model and an expert to keep it going. Get them younger and they are inexperienced.

A young man, I ruminated, a car-knowing young man. Luck was with me. A young reporter named Jack Strong hove into view and I suddenly remembered that he had once said, "If you need any help with your son's car..."

When I left home this morning the garage door was open, the hood was up on the mighty machine and an admiring gallery of girls and children had begun to assemble as that lordly creature, the amateur mechanic, rolled up his sleeves.

I heard one of my daughters say, "I believe I'll wash his car for him," and I felt as prepared for my son's arrival as if I'd washed all the windows and baked a cake. With the car taken care of, maybe I'll get around to a cake.

Many Parties Planned For Miss Smith, Fiancee

Miss Nansi-Lee Smith and her fiance, Jerry Herbert Clark, will arrive from Denver, Colo., on Sunday, June 14, to visit the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude M. Swinney of Decatur, and to complete final plans for their wedding.

The ceremony will be solemnized at 4:30 o'clock on Friday, June 19, in the chapel of the Druid Hills Methodist Church.

Since her graduation from Denison University, Miss Smith has been employed in Denver. Mr. Clark, son of the John J. Clark of Wichita, Kan., has just received his master's degree from Colorado University in geological petroleum engineering.

En route to Decatur, the couple will spend a few days in Wichita with Mr. Clark's parents and will be extensively entertained.

On Monday morning, June 15, Mrs. William L. Holland and Mrs. Jack Hoerner have planned a bridal coffee for Nansi-Lee at the latter's Decatur home. The color motif will be pink and white, with the coffee table centered with a lovely white tulip tree studded with pink rosebuds.

Wednesday evening, June 17, Mr. and Mrs. Swinney will entertain at a Southern "catfish and hush puppy" dinner for the out-of-town guests, and on Thursday, June 18, Mrs. Wilcox Fox will be hostess for the bride's luncheon at her home on Winona drive. At the same hour Mr. Clark will be host to his attendants at luncheon at the East Lake Country Club, and Mrs. Walter Posey of Oxford road will entertain the other visitors at luncheon. The bride-elect's grandmother, Mrs. Mary Brennen of Springfield, Ill., and her aunt, Mrs. R. C. Sullivan of Mattoon, Ill., will be Mrs. Posey's guests for the wedding. Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Clark will be hosts at the rehearsal dinner at the East Lake Country Club.

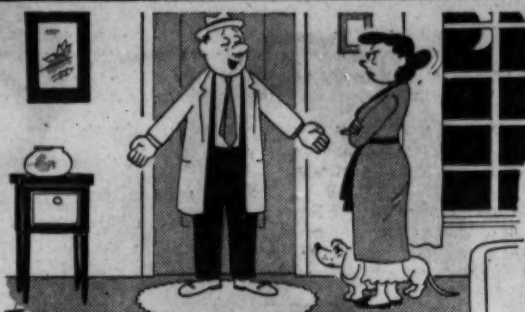

The day of the wedding Mrs. Carl Renfro and Mrs. Joe Frierson will be hostesses at a luncheon at Mrs. Renfro's Glenn circle home for the guests from a distance. On Saturday morning after the wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Swinney will give a late breakfast in their garden before the visitors from a distance depart for home.

Lockheed Will Develop New Metals for Satellites

Lockheed's Georgia Division at Marietta has received a $525,000 Air Force contract to investigate new high temperature metals for possible future use of the nation's builders of satellites.

The contract was awarded by Wright Air Development Center, Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, Ohio, an agency of the Air Research and Development Command. It calls for a two-year research program to determine characteristics of four newly developed titanium alloys.

Lockheed spokesmen here said the program will develop and design any mechanical properties of the new metals. It also will determine fatigue or endurance limit for these materials at temperatures ranging from normal to 900-degree Fahrenheit temperatures.

Metal sheets of sizes commonly used in the fabrication of aircraft will be supplied Lockheed through the Air Force by Mallory-Sharron, Crucible Steel and Titanium Metals, Inc., manufacturers of the new high-temperature-resistant alloys.

Police See To Baby's Burial

An infant was buried Wednesday at Chatsworth, thanks to kind-hearted policemen.

Sgt. Z. P. Akins found a family stranded in a broken-down auto early Wednesday on the northwest expressway.

Nine adults occupied the auto along with a casket bearing the body of an infant who died six hours after birth.

The father, John B. Baggett, 33, explained that they were en route from Pearson in south Georgia to the family home in Chatsworth to bury the child.

Akins said the family had only $5.

He called for a wrecker. A mechanic said the car could not be repaired immediately.

The sergeant then called the State Patrol. Troopers from the Cartersville patrol station agreed to meet him at the Fulton-Cobb county line and carry the family on to Chatsworth.

They were transferred to the patrol car at the Chattahoochee River at 2 a.m. and a little more than an hour later were delivered to Chatsworth.

Luxury Motel Awaits Butler St. Slum Project

Decision was deferred Wednesday by the aldermanic board's urban renewal committee on a proposal by Dr. Marvin Mitchell and associates to construct a $2.5 million luxury motel at 315 Courtland street, NE.

Dr. Mitchell and his attorney, Scott Hogg, agreed to withhold a demand for a decision until federal agencies give final approval to the Butler area urban renewal project. Site of the 110-unit motel is a triangle lying at the extreme northwest point of the Butler project.

Ald. Hamilton Douglas, chairman of the urban renewal committee, said the committee proposed to defer the decision until the project is cleared. Then there will be a reopening for further exploration.

Dr. Mitchell expressed complete accord with the idea of waiting approximately another month before pressing for the decision. He, however, indicated he will continue to press for the right to develop the area under question.

Atlantan Is Ejected Safely as Jet Crashes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—A Vigilante twin-jet attack bomber crashed and burned near Pataksla shortly after noon Wednesday.

The test pilot, H. Z. Hopkins Jr., 33, of Atlanta, ejected himself from the plane and landed safely.

Hopkins' parents live at 409 Blackburn Rd., NW, Atlanta.

The Vigilante is a new supersonic attack bomber capable of carrying nuclear weapons. The North American Aviation Co., maker of the plane, has been unable to determine the cause of the crash.

"completely by private capital."

The hearing Wednesday was an appeal from a decision of a four-member committee designated to screen all proposed construction in urban renewal projects to determine whether they are consistent with redevelopment plans. The screening group declined to approve the Mitchell project at this time.

State Acts To Hold 'Em On Farm

By GENE BRITTON

Approval of a plan to keep 'em down on the farm was announced Wednesday.

Abit Massey, director of the State Department of Commerce, said the final green light has been given to a program to help scotch the population exodus from rural counties.

The plan, under study for almost three months, is being jointly sponsored by the Department of Commerce, Georgia Tech's Industrial Development Branch and Georgia Rural Electric.

Massey said the plan involves a series of workshops to be held in "needy" counties where heavy population losses are being recorded.

The workshops will be designed to show local citizens the way to attract and hold industry, Massey said. In counties where there is no industry-getting organization already organized, local leaders will be guided in setting up such groups, he added.

Local groups taking part in the program will put up $50 to finance the workshop. Rural electric groups will pay $75 and the Department of Commerce and Georgia Tech will pay the rest. Earlier, Massey estimated the total cost of the workshops at about $250 each, plus travel expenses.

The workshops will be conducted by experts in planning from Tech's Industrial Development Branch.

Massey Wednesday sent out letters to some 30 counties expected to "register" for the workshops. A number of other counties are expected to participate in the program later.

Massey indicated it is the ultimate aim of the plan to help local leaders enliven their communities, attract new industries and thereby provide jobs for increasing numbers of people who are leaving the small counties and seeking jobs in urban areas.

Between 1940 and 1958, 96 Georgia counties had losses in population.

Si Garrett Trial Still In Question

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—Si Garrett, former attorney general of Alabama, is free today despite a pending murder charge against him.

And he may never have to stand trial on the 5-year-old indictment. State authorities have refused to reveal their plans.

Garrett was one of three public officials indicted in the slaying of Albert L. Patterson, who was shot to death in Phenix City June 18, 1954.

Patterson, murdered 17 days after he won the Democratic nomination on a pledge to clean up vice in Phenix City, was the father of the present governor.

John Patterson was elected attorney general in his father's place and subsequently rose to governor four years later.

After the slaying, Garrett underwent more than a year's treatment for a mental ailment in John Sealy Hospital at Galveston, Tex., the same one in which Louisiana Gov. Earl Long is now hospitalized.

Returning to Alabama late in 1955, Garrett announced he was ready to face a jury. Instead of going ahead with the trial, however, John Patterson, who was then attorney general, tried to get Garrett to take a sanity test. Garrett didn't plead insanity to the murder charge.

Judge J. Russell McElroy of Birmingham, special jurist who tried the Patterson murder cases, ruled Garrett could not be forced to undergo a sanity test. His ruling recently was upheld by the Alabama Supreme Court.

That was the latest development. Garrett has never been tried on the charge, and there is no indication if or when he will be. The other two public officials indicted in the slaying were tried in the spring of 1955.

Albert Fuller, former chief deputy sheriff in Phenix City, was convicted and is serving a life sentence in Kilby Prison. Former Circuit Solicitor Arch Ferrell was acquitted.

Poor Roads Hurt State, Pope Says

VALDOSTA (AP)—Poor highways are costing Georgia dollars and industry, Lonnie A. Pope, executive assistant to the State Highway Board, said Wednesday.

In a speech before the Valdosta Rotary Club, Pope said Georgia has made a determined effort in the past decade to attract new industries.

"We are developing from a strictly agricultural state to one that is balanced with agriculture and industry," he said.

Pope pointed out that the states that have good transportation systems—good highways—will get the new industries.

GO OUT OF WAY

What is the situation now?

Pope said that:

1. "Georgia is being bypassed every day by tourists traveling up and down the East Coast. Many of them travel miles and miles out of their way to avoid bumpy and dangerous rides over our roads. We are losing the tourist dollar which is so important to our economy because our highways are full of cracks, patches and potholes.

2. "Industries are demanding better roads.

3. "Our own citizens are writing letters every day to the Highway department deploring the condition of our highways.

"Our primary objective for the next four years," Pope said, "will be to speed up (the interstate highway system) as fast as possible. It is imperative that we keep pace with the other states in these highways. . . ."

"At the present time, in the highway department," Pope said, "we are faced with the dilemma of barely being able to match federal funds and pay off our existing obligations, at a time when our roads are in worse condition than at any other period in our history."

Pope outlined this picture of Highway department funds:

Total appropriation for the next fiscal year—$57,500,000.

Amount earmarked for federal aid projects—27 million dollars.

Earmarked for maintenance—11 million dollars.

Rural roads bonds—$7,500,000.

Bridge Authority and State Office Building Authority bonds—$3 million.

Fixed expenses—$7,750,000.

Reserve—$1,342,414.

"This leaves not one penny for county and city contracts and 100 per cent state-aid projects at a time when every county in Georgia and most of our cities are desperately in need of road improvements," Pope said.

9 Positions Abolished on Milk Board

Nine supervisory positions with the Georgia Milk Commission are being abolished according to Clifton A. Ward, chairman-director of the commission.

Ward, who was named head of the commission following its transfer to the State Department of Agriculture earlier this year, said reorganization of the commission was done in such a manner that the supervisory positions would be of little or no value to the commission.

Ward pointed out also that the abolishment of the nine supervisory position was in keeping with economy measures in state government called for by Gov. Vandiver.

The nine commission supervisors whose positions have been abolished are: A. E. Wheeler Jr., Homerville; Brooks C. Robertson, Manchester; L. T. Raulerson, Haylow; John S. McElmurray, Hepzibah; Tom Mabry, Americus; Elbert Hill, Macon; Leroy Hendricks, Savannah; J. L. Bentley, Thomaston, and H. F. Baggett, Moultrie.

★ Sports Editor ★

A Diamond Spectacular

When the finest young players in the state mustered Wednesday to start rehearsals for the annual Constitution-GHSA baseball Civil War, there was a familiar looking left-handed pitcher in the group.

His name is Bobby Hendley. He isn't going to pitch for the South against the North at Poncey Friday night, for he is now employed by the Crackers. Hendley was on the premises this time as an instructor, the first graduate of the game to return in that capacity.

Two years ago Hendley, fresh out of Lanier High, attracted attention of scouts with his nifty hurling for the South squad. Walt Widmayer, the former Cracker scout, procured Hendley's signature on a Milwaukee contract. And Widmayer has reason to be elated over getting there first with the most. Though Hendley is a four-game winner and a future big league prospect, he may require further seasoning in a lower league.

Hendley was one of the Crackers volunteering services at a kick-off clinic Wednesday afternoon at Poncey. South coach Lem Clark of Glynn Academy and North coach Julian Mock of Murphy sent their squads through a workout at Rose Bowl Field in between the Poncey visit.

Cracker Manager Buddy Bates, pitchers Hendley and Corky Valentine, catcher Guy Morton, infielders Poochie Hartsfield and Al Federoff and outfielder Bob Talbot formed the faculty.

Few teachers have had more attentive pupils. Good baseball players are always eager to improve, and the boys picked up helpful pointers from the Crackers.

—The 'Kid' Is Now a Husky Outfielder

"This is certainly going to help the players," Coach Mock remarked, "but it's going to help the coaches more. We should have an annual baseball clinic for the coaches." And that sounds like a good idea.

North manager Country Brown will join the cast Thursday. South pilot Charlie Glock worked out the squad with Clark. They rank with the all-time Cracker favorites, and the kids are looking forward to playing for them.

Brown, scanning a North roster recently, was particularly interested when he noted the name of Bobby Dodd Jr. on his list. He hasn't seen Dodd in years, and he'd failed to recognize a picture of the strapping outfielder.

"I can't believe that's the same kid I used to talk to at Poncey," Country remarked. "Used to see him around the ball park a lot when I was playing. I'd give him a ball now and then."

Young Dodd vividly recalls Brown, who was the star of the Cracker cast back in the days when the park was frequently crowded.

"I sure do remember him," Dodd said during a lull at Wednesday's clinic. "He was always my hero when I was a small kid. It's going to be a pleasure to play for him now."

—All-Stars With Stars in Their Eyes

Staging an all-star game entails a lot of work and takes up precious space on the sports pages, and sometimes promoters are tempted to abandon the contest.

But you forget all about such ideas and start mapping plans for next year when you see the squads arrive. It's a thrill for all the players, a week they never forget. But it's a particular treat for the kids from the smaller cities. Double-A baseball isn't held in too high esteem in some quarters, but the Crackers are still heroes to young players. And seeing a double-A game, as the squad did Wednesday night as guests of the Crackers, is a rare treat indeed for a boy who's never been to Poncey before.

I was particularly interested in observing Ralford Hardy, an infielder on the South squad, as Federoff and Hartsfield lectured at second base.

In these days of jets and rockets it's fashionable to be blasé and cynical. A trip to Atlanta is routine, unless you've never made a trip to Atlanta. So it's indeed a thrill to watch a youngster like Hardy enjoying the all-star program. The buildings look taller to a boy from Omega. I know... because that's my home town. And unless I've miscalculated, Omega is the smallest town represented in the North-South contest.

When Hardy tells you that he's really happy to be here, you know he means it. And so do the others. The game is usually the best prep baseball show in the state. Regardless of the outcome, it's by far the finest array of talent corralled in this state.

Paul Atkinson, who is producing this year's show, has another spectacular in the making. In addition to the star-studded high school casts, there will be a homer-hitting contest featuring Bob Montag, the former Cracker slugger, Brown and Morris Mitchell of Murphy. Jim Hearn, a veteran of 23 years in the majors, will serve 'em for the homer hitters. Miss Cobb County, the lovely Miss Pat Campbell, will hurl the first ball, and the Third Army band will supply the music.

Friday is the time, and Poncey is the place to see the finest high school baseball game of the year.

Stars Put Fences in Jeopardy

Martin, Durden Blast for North

By PAUL ATKINSON
Ponce de Leon Park's right field signs are in jeopardy. And the left field fence isn't altogether safe.

At least, it appeared that way Wednesday as North and South All-Star baseball players congregated for the ninth annual GHSA Constitution-sponsored game at Poncey Friday night.

Particularly powerful swingers from the left side were the North's Morris Mitchell of Murphy, Homer Martin of North Fulton, Billy Shirah of Griffin and Charles Lingerfelt of Dalton.

Rotund Arnold White of Fitzgerald, who packs 235 pounds on a 6-1 frame, rocketed a ball to the Rose Bowl Field outer gardens that would have cleared Poncey's convenient left field barrier. And North first baseman Phil Durden of Athens similarly waylaid a pitch.

So there will be no shortage of power.

Or versatility, as was evidenced in the South's drills under the watchful eyes of manager Charles Glock and coach Lem Clark of Glynn Academy.

Immediately dispatched to third base were Omega's Ralford Hardy and Glynn's Robert Sapp, second baseman by preference but third base guardians by necessity. Benedictine third baseman Jerry Templeton, of course, won't join the squad until Friday because of graduation commitments, so Hardy and Sapp will alternate at second and third bases.

Clark and Glock shuffled their outfield also. It seems that all four gardeners had played center-field, so Glynn's Lorne Tillman and Lanier's Danny O'Neal were moved to left and right fields.

In other lineup juggling, it is figured the South will use Savannah pitcher Don Woeltjen and Dudley Hughes hurler, Pug

Brown TKOs Rosi In Ninth Round

Retains Lightweight Title Despite Rugged Evening

By JACK HAND

WASHINGTON (AP)—Joe Brown, his lightweight title tilted over one ear, saved his championship Wednesday night by stopping baldish Paolo Rosi on severe cuts on a ninth-round technical knockout.

Two commission doctors examined Rosi's cuts after the bell ended the eighth round and advised Referee Charley Reynolds to stop the contest. Under National Boxing Assn. rules it went as a ninth round TKO.

Brown was having a rough time from the ever-charging Rosi who applied steady pressure through the entire eight rounds.

Brown had opened cuts on the bridge of Rosi's nose in the third and alongside the left eye in the fifth. But they appeared to be minor as fast work by his corner crew repaired most of the damage.

Midway in the eighth, Brown slashed Rosi over the right eye and then landed a hard right to the cut on the outside corner of the left eye.

Blood gushed from the cut and streamed down Rosi's bony face.

He put his glove up to wipe away the gore. But it didn't help much. As soon as the bell ended the eighth, Referee Reynolds summoned Dr. Clark Halstead and Dr. Jack Kniepp of the District of Columbia Boxing Commission. They examined the cuts for several seconds while Brown stood in mid ring waiting for the ball that never came.

Referee Reynolds walked over to Brown and raised his right hand in victory, indicating that the doctors had ended it.

Brown weighed 132, Rosi 134.

A tendency to cut around his jutting brows has plagued the Italian-born New Yorker throughout his career. It may have cost him the championship of the world.

The three officials were split on their scoring under the "10-point must" system through eight rounds.

Sports' Rally Gains A Split

Simmons and Panko Give Crackers 6-3 Opener

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Max Simmons and Jerry Davis, who haven't had time to get their Atlanta and Shreveport uniforms dirty, swapped them for heroes' togas Wednesday night as the Crackers and Sports split a doubleheader.

Right-hander Simmons, a virtual unknown to 1,418 Ponce de Leon loyalists, hurled scoreless, four-hit baseball for five and one-third innings as the Crackers overcame a 3-0 deficit to capture the bob-tailed opener, 6-3.

Left-hander Davis, purchased from Nashville about 10 days ago, permitted the Crackers two hits and no runs over the same rescue distance as the Sports overhauled Atlanta for a 5-4 triumph after being behind by 4-0 in the after-piece.

Fireballing Simmons, bought from Birmingham May 29, had pitched only one hitless inning in Atlanta flannel before taking over the hill from wild Dale Hendrickson in the second inning.

Davis, once considered a top prospect in the Cincinnati organization, was making only his third appearance for Les Peden's cellar-mired tenants. And when he was through notching the victory that made him 2-0 overall, he had mowed down Birmingham and Atlanta without allowing a run for 11 innings.

Simmons, 13-7 at Augusta in the South Atlantic League last year, got an inauspicious start by serving up a two-run single to Lou Klimchok, who rapped nine safe blows in the three-game series.

But after that he permitted only three safeties. And in the fifth inning, only one in which he was in hot water, he displayed his mettle by bailing out with some great clutch work.

A leadoff by Leo Posada and single by Klimchok put runners on second and third with none out, because Klimchok claimed second on the throw-in.

Simmons forced manager Peden to line out to second baseman Al Federoff, who han-

Blemker Deals 'Em At Tigers Today

Stowe Probable Choice;
FSU, Geo. Washington Go

By MICKEY LOGUE
Constitution Sports Writer

GASTONIA, N.C.—Georgia Tech will call on Buddy Blemker one more time here Thursday night as four baseball teams start pitching for the NCAA District 3 championship and a berth in the College World Series.

Tech tackles Clemson's Atlantic Coast Conference and defending district champions at 9 o'clock. George Washington's Southern Conference titlists encounter Florida State's strong independents in the 6:30 opener.

Winner of the three-day, double-elimination competition advances to Omaha, Neb., June 12-18 for the College World Series.

A first-game victory is a must for Tech's second-place Southeastern Conference finishers, who can never count on pitching consistency past the reliable Blemker.

Blemker's 8-2 record isn't the best among district pitchers, but no hurler involved has meant more to his team over a three-season span. The little lefty fired Tech to its first SEC title in 1957 and furnished the mound ammunition for an Eastern Division crown this spring.

Blemker stopped Ole Miss, 4-3, in 10 innings before the Rebels captured the next pair and the league championship. In Clemson, he faces an adversary that he first defeated in a 15-inning freshman marathon, 2-1.

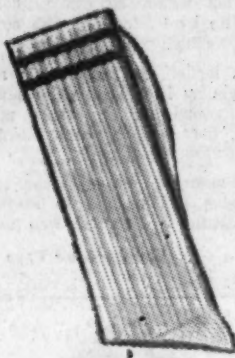

Blemker is the hill half of an all-star battery that includes catcher George Inman. Both were selected to the District 3 stars.

Coach Bill Wilhelm has refused to disclose Clemson's probable starter, listing southpaw Ty Cline (4-0) and Harold Stowe (6-3) and right-hander Bailey Hendley (3-1) as possibilities.

Since Stowe is a Gastonia native, he would be a good psychological choice. However, Wilhelm is wary of Tech's right-handed batting strength.

Sophomore Dennis Hill, a 5-6 lefty who has won all 12 of his varsity starts, goes for heavy-hitting George Washington against FSU. The Seminoles counter with soph right-hander Frank Davis (7-2).

Since final examinations begin next Monday, Tech accepted the bid with the reservation that it cannot play past Saturday night, when the finals are scheduled.

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The Kansas City Athletics moved within 1½ games of the American League lead Wednesday night, defeating the Boston Red Sox 5-3 in their fifth straight victory.

The Athletics scored their runs in the third inning off Bill Monbouquette. Meanwhile, Johnny Kucks and Ray Herbert combined a six-hit pitching effort with Kucks getting credit for his first victory since coming to the A's from New York 10 days ago in a trade.

Mathews' Two HRs Deck Giants, 7-4

Aaron Also Blasts Homer As Braves Add to Lead

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Eddie Mathews smashed a pair of mighty two-run homers and Hank Aaron contributed a solo blast Wednesday night in helping the Milwaukee Braves to a 7-4 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Mathews' 18th and 19th home runs and Aaron's 15th were the big blows as the first place Braves moved 3½ games ahead of San Francisco.

The first homer by Mathews was a tape-measure job which sailed some 450 feet into the bleachers in right after Casey Wise had led off the sixth inning with a walk. The blow tied the score at 3-all.

The Braves added another in the inning on a double by Aaron and a single by Wes Covington.

In the seventh Wise singled and Mathews followed with a 420-foot hoist over the fence in right-center.

Phillies March, 4-3
PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Ed Bouchee and Richie Ashburn provided the power Wednesday night to back up Jim Owens' eight-hit for a 4-3 Philadelphia victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Bouchee hit a two-run homer in the third and walked in the fifth, later scoring on Wally Post's single.

Ashburn, last year's National League batting champion who has been in a slump, has far, collected three hits, boosting his average from .231 to .243, and scored two runs.

Holloman Eyes Job As Umpire

By PAUL ATKINSON

The way back to the major leagues is a long one. But for Alva Lee (Bobo) Holloman, Friday night may be a stepping stone.

The husky Athens resident, who has taken up umpiring Little League and Pony League games, will join three of Atlanta's finest umpires as the GHSA's Constitution-sponsored North-South Game at Ponce de Leon Park.

Working with Holloman, who hurled a not-hit, no-run game in his major league debut as a starting pitcher, will be Atlanta Baseball Umpires Assn. members Ed Norris (plate), Henry Williams (bases) and Jesse Link (bases).

Holloman indicated Wednesday that he would consider an umpiring career. "I've talked with Bill Summers, the American League umpire," Bobo said. "He was very encouraging. I'm going to go to his school and really get on this umpiring."

It was May 7, 1953, that Holloman, a strapping 27-year-old native of Thomaston and at-that-time resident of Macon, broke into the Hall of Fame while toiling for the St. Louis Browns, becoming the first pitcher in modern times to do that in his first major league starting journey.

But Bobo's an umpire now, and he's proud of it. "Do I like umpiring," he repeated a question? "I should say I do."

He might like it well enough to work another major league no-hitter—but as an umpire.

Crackers Pitch, Stars Catch Advice on Inside Baseball

Corky, Bates Tutor Players

By EARL SIMPKINS

Youngsters who will take over Ponce de Leon Park for the North-South High School All-Star baseball game Friday night got some pointers Wednesday afternoon from the regular tenants.

Manager Buddy Bates joined several of the Crackers' old pros and young left-hander Bobby Hendley for a clinic to teach the All-Stars some of the tricks of the trade.

Atlanta favorite Corky Valentine joined Hendley to work with the pitchers while Bates and Bob Talbot look over the outfielders. Infielders worked with Poochie Hartsfield and Al Federoff, and catchers were tutored by Guy Morion.

Hendley found it to be "Old Home Week" as he recognized several of his former high school opponents. Only two years ago the slender southpaw was a member of the South team after completing his career at Lanier High School in Macon.

Oddly enough, a boy who promises to be one of, if not the, top pitchers in this year's game also is out of Macon, although not from Lanier. If right-hander Pug Churchwell follows his regular-season form, North hitters could be in for a rough three innings Friday night.

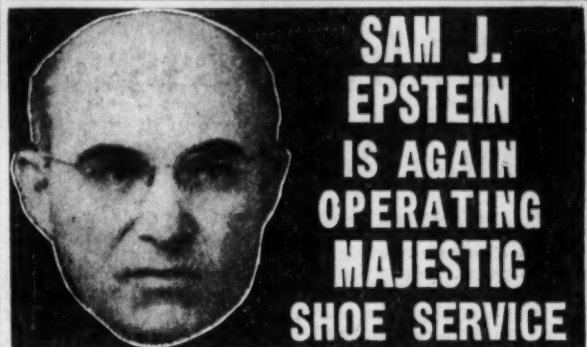

Churchwell posted a career record of 24-6 at Dudley Hughes in Macon. He was 6-2 for his senior season and struck out 310 batters over a three-year period.

The Crackers, in the short time they had to work with the young players, showed them as many of the pro tricks as possible. These ranged from Morton's showing the catchers how to hold the bare hand to help avoid broken fingers, and thus eliminating some of their fear of injuries, to Federoff's explaining how to pick up a hard-to-field grounder hit directly at an infielder.

A man of many pitches, Valentine explained and demonstrated some that he uses plus giving tips on holding runners on base and other fine points of pitching.

Before going out to the outfield, Bates took both squads for a lecture on hitting.

Churchwell at first base—or, at least, they'll work there to back up White. Both played the first base slot, and can handle bat and glove with equal finesse.

North coach Julian Mock, who handled Murphy so adroitly during the 1959 season, wouldn't name a starting pitcher. Neither would Clark nor Glock. "I want to wait and see how things look Thursday," Mock said. "I was pleased at the amount of work we got in the first day. These kids catch on quickly."

STAR BRIGHT: Both the North and South scheduled double drills Thursday and it was indicated each would take some final batting ticks Friday morning as both clubs seek to hone their offenses.

Rising Mart Slips To Irregular Close

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market was unable to hold a moderate recovery from Tuesday's sharp setback, and prices were mixed by the close.

Electronics, aluminum and tobacco held some solid gains.

Aircraft, steel, utilities, rails, drugs, chemicals and rubbers were mostly lower.

The market was briskly higher at the start but the peak of the gain was reached by the end of the first hour. The level remained on the upside most of the day with prices backing away gradually until the final hour when the pattern became irregular.

Except for the most active gainers, the rebound from Tuesday's sell-off seemed to lack conviction. Wall Street was more preoccupied with news that the administration is considering a raise in the interest rate ceiling on long-term government bonds.

This received more prominent publication Wednesday and led many investors to consider not only the money but also the relatively more attractive yield prospects that may be upcoming in bonds as against income-producing equities.

News that Alcoa had stepped up its output to 83 per cent of capacity and reports of a similar boost at Kaiser Aluminum lent strength to the aluminum group.

Aluminum Ltd. was the most active stock, up 1/4 at 31 1/4 on 107,500 shares. Second was Fairbanks Whitney, successor to Penn-Texas, up 1/4 at 8 1/4 on 64,600 shares. Third was Kaiser Aluminum, up 1/4 at 54 1/4 on 53,300 shares.

Wall Street gossip of new developments at Lorillard, possibly a new cigar or new chemical treatment, accompanied this stock's advance of 2 1/2 to 40 1/4.

J. I. Case, up 1, responded to sharply higher earnings.

Texton was up 1 on a raised dividend.

Dam Seen Guaranteeing Water Here

An Army Corps of Engineers' report on Buford Dam predicts the project's multiple benefits will be compounded through the years to boost development of the Atlanta area.

The report notes that possibility of an Atlanta water shortage no longer exists because of the vast water supply impounded at Buford.

The dam releases water to insure a minimum flow in the Chattahoochee River at Atlanta of 600 cubic feet a second, the report says.

The report on the dam's first year of operation was issued by Maj. Gen. F. M. Albrecht of Atlanta and Col. Robert W. Love of Mobile, Ala. Albrecht is division engineer. Love, as district engineer, is responsible for the dam's operation.

The dam "has brought all the benefits that were imagined during the planning, and more," said Gen. Albrecht, pointing out that 2 1/4 million persons visited the project during the first year.

Buford Dam forms the 38,000-acre Lake Sidney Lanier on the Chattahoochee River 35 miles northeast of Atlanta. More than 2 1/4 million persons visited the lake in its first year of operation. Col. Love said that the project's main function—to provide headwater reservoirs to regulate stream flow and flood protection for the upper Chattahoochee Valley—has reduced flood damage by $400,000 since Feb. 1, 1956, when filling the reservoir began.
